RECORD VOTE SEEMS CERTAIN; COOLIDGE VICTORY PREDICTED IN EVERY QUARTER

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent.)
New York, Nov. 3.—Tomorrow's march to the polls will be the greatest electoral trek the world has ever witnessed.

Unless the managers of all parties and all candidates are badly off in their estimates, fully 30,000,000 Americans will ballot to determine their government, local, state and national and eclipse by some four million their record vote of 1920 when 27,332,332 citizens recorded their preference in the Harding-Cox contest.

The record breaking proportions of the vote was about the only thing that the leaders of all parties have agreed upon. On virtually every other aspect of tomorrow's great referendum, there were today the usual sharp differences of opinion, conflicting claims, and confusing cross currents.

The attitudes of the three parties today, 24 hours in advance of the election, might be described thus:

The Republicans are supremely, even vociferously confident of a Coolidge-Dawes victory.

The Democrats are quietly hopeful for Davis and Bryan.

The independents are militantly expectant of a huge popular vote, and which to build a new and permanent third party in American politics.

Certainly every surface indication points to the election of Calvin Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes—all the "experts" have agreed that it looks like a Republican victory in the electoral college, all of the straw votes, state polls and other biometric surveys have indicated a Coolidge sweep, and canny old Wall Street was betting 11 to 1 today that Coolidge would succeed himself.

The more cautious among the forecasters of Coolidge victory were accounting him today a bare majority in the electoral college. The more sanguine estimate him as high as 350 votes in the college, which would be a sweeping victory. Notwithstanding all this, Democratic leaders refused today to be downhearted—at least hardly so.

Chas. L. Shaver, chairman of the Democratic national committee, said today that the hope of the Democrats is in the great silent vote that does not express itself in straw votes, precinct caucuses and other pre-election indications.

It was just a great, silent vote in 1920, Democratic leaders pointed out, that elected Woodrow Wilson over Charles E. Hughes, when every surface indication pointed to a Hughes victory, just as every surface indication now points to a Coolidge victory.

In that memorable year, too, the "experts" elected Hughes, Wall Street bet on Hughes and even staid Democratic journals conceded his election 8 to 1 on election night. Then, now, the east was predominantly Republican ticket. Wilson carried but two states east of the Mississippi and north of the Mason-Dixon line, out he won.

The Republican counter this line of reasoning by pointing to the fact that eight years ago there was not the confusing factor of a strong and militant independent candidacy such as La Follette's. While it is true, they say, that La Follette has cut heavily into Republican territory in the west, it is also true that the Wisconsin insurgent has deeply tapped the enormous labor vote that has usually been Democratic.

SEE A FORESTER FIRST IF YOU WOULD HUNT

Harrisburg, Nov. 3 (INS).—The hunting season is not yet a closed question, Seth Gordon, Game Commission Secretary, warns, despite the rain which fell Friday night. The high winds of yesterday have dried out the forest's, he says, making them dry and increasing the fire danger.

Guns should call forest rangers daily, he declared, to save themselves from prosecution for violating Gov. Pinchot's proclamation.

First Accident Of The Local Hunting Season Sends Boy To Hospital

The first hunting accident to occur in this vicinity for the season of 1924 befell Clyde Fulton, 17 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fulton, of South Fourth street. He is a patient at the Clearfield Hospital suffering from shot wounds in both legs, both hands and about the chest.

Young Fulton, in company with his uncle William Lytton and Forest Root were hunting rabbits on Coal Hill, about one mile from town. About 9:30 in the morning the dogs jumped a rabbit and it ran down the hill past Root, who raised his gun and fired a charge of No. 6 shot after it. Fulton was standing on an old road forty or fifty yards below Root, who was not aware just where his fellow hunter was at the time.

Fulton saw the rabbit coming down the hill and throwing his gun to his shoulder was just in the act of firing at the rabbit. He was directly in line though hidden by the brush, of the hunter above him, and with the crack of Root's gun the load of shot peppered Fulton, two of the pellets entered each of his legs, a couple lodged in each of his outstretched arms, while several others struck him about the body.

The injured youth was hustled at once to the Clearfield Hospital where all of the shot were removed but one which had entered one of his lungs, and another that had lodged in his leg beyond the reach of a probe. He is resting comfortably at this time and is expected to fully recover from his wounds within a short time.

Game Might Scarce In Clearfield County; Few Limit Bags Are Taken

The hunting season, despite Governor Pinchot's "weather ban," opened in Clearfield county Saturday, the copious rain of Friday evening bringing joy to the hearts of the anxious nimrods, who had every arrangement completed for their participation in the first day's hunt.

The "early birds," those fellows who were up to greet the sun when he showed his nose up over the eastern hills, found woods and fields damp and in shape for rabbit trailing, although the thick carpet of leaves made it almost impossible to "still hunt" the wily pheasant close enough for a satisfactory shot at this late time of the season. As a result the first day's bag was very much smaller than usual.

The "late comers" or afternoon hunters were out of luck entirely, as there were hunters enough in the woods in the morning to "fine tooth comb" every acre of likely looking rabbit and bird cover for miles around Clearfield, while by noon time the woods were almost as dry as the no rain had fallen the evening previous.

In addition to the adverse weather conditions both rabbits and birds are reported scarcer than at any other time during the past five years. There were very nearly 9300 hunters licensed to hunt Saturday. Not less than 9000 of them were in the woods. That in large measure explains the scarcity of game, and it appears as though it would get worse instead of better.

Mr. and Mrs. William Parks, Mr. and Mrs. Milford Helms and little daughter Audrey motored from Ridgway and spent the week-end with the Helmses of Third street.

Atlantic Moonshine Causes Death Of Well Known Sanborn Citizen

Poison moonshine again took its toll in this county when it added to its already large list the name of Stack Smeal, of Sanborn, who died in great agony yesterday afternoon after having taken several drinks of the "real stuff" a half hour previous to his death.

In company with his nephew, Smeal who is a bachelor, motored to Atlantic, near Houtzdale, during the afternoon, where they were offered several drinks apiece. The youth declined, but according to witnesses of the tragedy, Mr. Smeal accepted the invitation and drank three times from a bottle containing the poisoned beverage. Following the final drink the unfortunate man became deadly ill. He was rendered every assistance possible by his companions, being placed in an automobile and rushed to Houtzdale in an effort to locate a physician.

Although he was unconscious when the party arrived there it was found that a spark of life still remained in his body. However, as he was being carried into the doctor's residence however, and before any medical aid could be rendered him.

Coroner J. I. Pollum of this city was notified of the death of the man last evening and will leave for Houtzdale this morning to make an investigation of the case.

The nature of the poisoning has not yet been determined, a detail which will be taken up when a complete investigation is made.

The dead man was about 32 years of age and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Smeal, of Sanborn. His mother is a sister of Edward C. John and Thomas Bauman, of Clearfield.

SWOPE, SECRETARY TO SENATOR PEPPER, QUITS HIS POST

Charles P. Swope, secretary to United States Senator George Wharton Pepper, has resigned. He will continue in the Senator's office at Washington until some time after the election. It is understood he plans to enter business in Washington.

Swope was appointed as secretary to the Senator the day before Pepper took his oath of office as a member of the Senate. At the time of appointment, Swope had been executive clerk in the Governor's office, then the latter part of the Sprout administration.

Prior to that he had acted as secretary to Senator Penrose during the war while Legion Taylor, Penrose's regular assistant, was in service. The reason for Swope's appointment was that it was realized that Pepper did not know the politics of Pennsylvania and had no experience which would teach him the ropes in Washington. Swope knew the politics of the State and was placed in Pepper's office by Sprout and Harry Baker, Republican State chairman, to coach Pepper politically; and also knew the ropes of Washington from his experience in Penrose's office.

HUNTING TAKES A TOLL OF 3 LIVES ON OPENING DAY

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 3 (INS).—Although the hunting season is only two days old, three persons are dead direct results of the gunning season in Central Pennsylvania.

Lester Ulrich, 4 years old, was killed and his uncle, Harry S. Rich, 30, of New Cumberland, was wounded when the boy's six year old brother Robert discharged a shotgun. Both victims were struck at the same time. Harry Fuhrman, 20, of Conewago, was found dead along a fence, presumably killed by his own gun.

Wm. Wetzel, 33, of Columbia, was killed by Joseph Eckman, to whom he was explaining the mechanism of a gun.

NEW YORK IS BATTLE GROUND FOR BOTH REPUBLICANS AND DEMOCRATS ALIKE

"As New York Goes So Goes The Nation" Seems To Be The Best Pre-Election Forecast This Year.

A TITANTIC STRUGGLE ON

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

New York, Nov. 3.—The Empire State's great block of 45 votes in the Electoral College is the hinge upon which Tuesday's election turns.

It explains why the managers of both Calvin Coolidge and John W. Davis have chosen to make this popularly state the "final battle ground."

In this campaign, complicated in the West as it is by the La Follette candidacy, the rival managers have tacitly agreed that "as goes New York, so goes the Nation." The pendulum, flying busily around every headquarters today, bear it out.

It is mathematically possible, of course, for either the Democrats or the Republicans to win without New York's 45 votes. But it is extremely improbable. Wilson won in 1916 without carrying New York, but by the narrowest possible squeak. His victory was the exception that proves the rule. To do it he had to sweep the West like a prairie fire—something that with La Follette running this year, neither party can hope to do.

For publicity purposes, of course, both Republican and Democratic managers are claiming everything in sight. The Democrats claim as high as 325 electoral votes, while the Republican estimates runs as high as 301. A majority is 266, but actually, none of them expect anything like these first figures.

From inside Democratic circles, there was obtained today a table that represents about the minimum of what the Democrats must do to win. And at the same time, it represents just about the maximum of Democratic hopes, irrespective of claims for publicity purposes.

Democratic Claims

This Democratic table follows:
Solid South: Alabama 12; Arkansas 9; Florida 6; Georgia 14; Kentucky 13; Louisiana 10; Mississippi 6; North Carolina 12; South Carolina 9; Texas 20; Virginia 12—total 127.

Border States: Tennessee 12; Oklahoma 10; Missouri 18; West Virginia 8; Maryland 8; Arizona 3; New Mexico 3—total 62.

Others: New Hampshire 4; Delaware 3; Colorado 6; Nebraska 8; New Jersey 14; Indiana 15; New York 45—total 95.

This makes a grand total of 284 votes, a margin of 18 over the 266 majority required for election. The defection of either New Jersey or Indiana and one of the tiny states could be suffered in this table and still the Democrats could win. But the loss of New York could not be suffered.

Now have the Democrat managers been able to figure any combination of states outside of New York that would give Davis 266 in the College.

Republican Claims

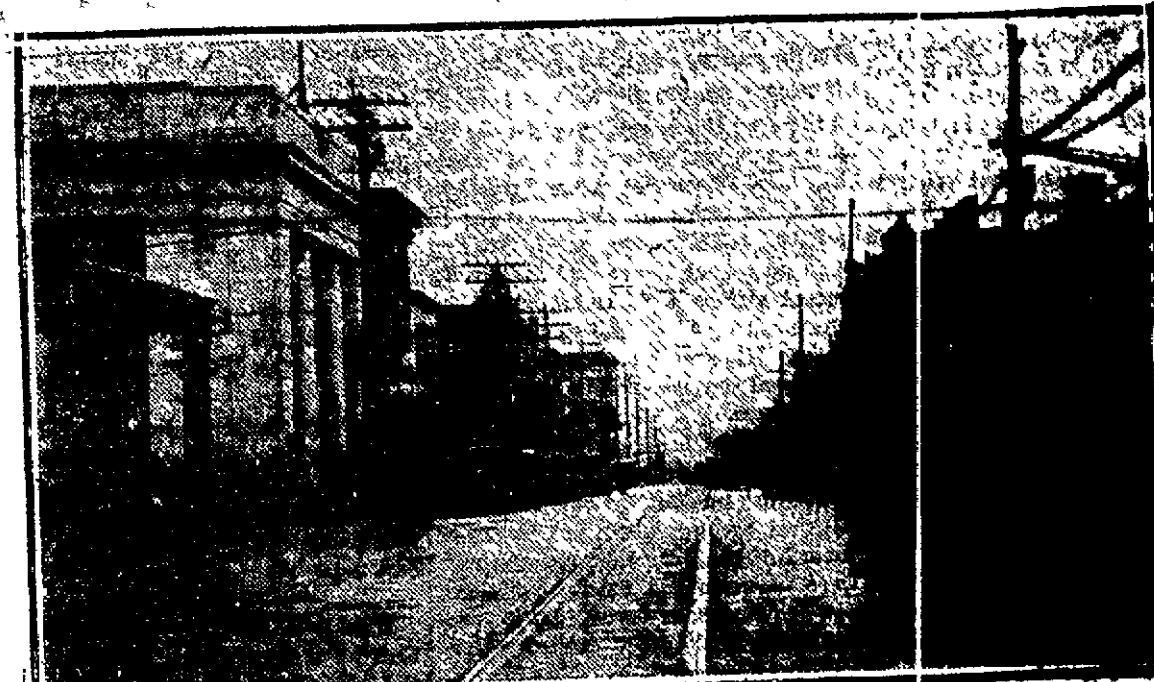

On the Republican side, the managers, while claiming totals as high as 391 in the Electoral College, actually expect to have around 300. The figure of 391 is based upon the Democrats, carrying nothing except what Cox carried, the low tide of Democratic accomplishment in modern political history, and La Follette carrying nothing except Wisconsin. This 391 then represents their maximum hopes.

Their minimum hopes run as low as 256, but no lower, according to the inside figures.

The "minimum table" of the Republican managers follows:
California 13; Colorado 6; Connecticut 7; Delaware 3; Idaho 4; Illinois 13; Indiana 15; Kansas 10; Maine 6; Massachusetts 18; Michigan 15; Nebraska 8; New Hampshire 4; New Jersey 14; New York 45; Ohio 24; Oregon 5; Pennsylvania 38; Rhode Island 5; Utah 4; Vermont 4; Wyoming 3—total 280.

This does not take into account Iowa 13; Nevada 3; Washington 8; (Continued on Page Three)

RADIO KNIFE USED SUCCESSFULLY IN SURGICAL CLINIC

A major operation performed without a single drop of blood issuing from the knife wound was successful Saturday, when Dr. Barton Cook Hirst, professor of obstetrics in the University of Pennsylvania, experimented for the first time in Philadelphia with the most recent development of radio science, the radio surgical knife.

Before beginning his experiment, Doctor Hirst told the members of his clinic that a successfully performed operation with the radio knife would mark the beginning of a new era in surgery. When the operation, a particularly serious one, was over, the professor spread his hands in a gesture of relief, and said:

"You have seen something I did not believe was possible."

Doctor Hirst admitted to his clinic that he did not understand the knife, and asked the class to watch carefully what it did. They watched, and this is what they saw:

A black rubber tube, looking much like a black lead pencil, attached to what appeared to be an ordinary radio set. A high-powered electric motor being started and a flashing of bulbs in the radio set. An eminent surgeon rather gingerly taking up the black pencil-like cylinder. Nurses and other surgeons crowding close.

The tip of the black cylinder, the radio knife proper, lightly touched the flesh of the patient on the operating table. A sharp sizzling, resembling the sounds of sparks leaping from a spark plug, a little smoke, the smell of burning, and the flesh parted, leaving an absolutely bloodless incision. In a minute underlying tissues were laid bare, ready for the surgeon's deft hands to remove the cause of the trouble. Not a drop of blood to be seen.

Then Doctor Hirst turned to his clinic with what was unconsciously a dramatic gesture and explained:

"I am a beginner at this as much as you," he said, "and my amazement is as great as yours. Here you see a great development of modern science, a surgical knife operated by (Continued from Page Six.)"

NINE SHOT, 3 BEATEN IN NILES OUTBREAK, UNDER MARTIAL LAW

By S. J. GORDON
(I. N. S. Special Correspondent.)

Niles, Ohio, Nov. 3.—With order restored and about 25 persons, members of the K. K. K. and their sworn foe, the Knights of the Flaming Circle, under arrest, charged with inciting to riot, order had been restored in Niles today under the martial law proclamation of Gov. A. V. Donahy late Saturday.

"I expect to withdraw most of the troops today," General Ben-on W. Hough, commander of the Ohio national guards in command of the state troops, said this morning. "Order has been restored and local authorities should be amply able to take care of any sporadic outbursts that may come."

500 Guardsmen There.

Five hundred guardsmen, composed of units from Akron, Warren and Youngstown, were still patrolling the streets today, and the military were assisting local officials in gathering evidence to present to the courts against those charged with responsibility for the outbreak of racial hatred which resulted in a casualty list of 13, Saturday, one of whom may die.

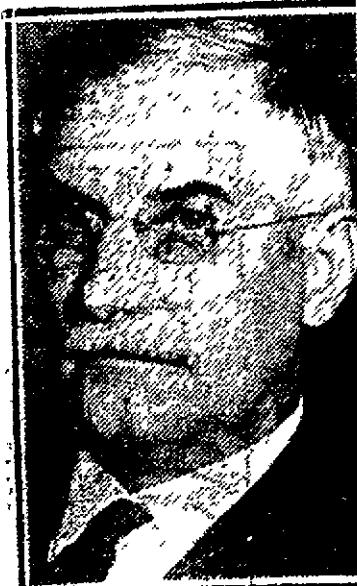

Police and military authorities this morning believe that the list of those injured in the many street clashes is actually much greater, and that a search of homes would reveal perhaps 50 who suffered from the clashes.

With order restored military authorities were turning their attention to the carrying out of the order issued by Gov. Donahy to Gen. Hough directing him to make a sweeping investigation of reasons behind the breaking down of civil authorities in Niles.

Booze A Factor.

"Civil authorities had ample warning and time to prepare for the threatened danger," Gov. Donahy wrote Gen. Hough "They failed. The reason for the breakdown of civil (Continued on Page Two.)"

DUNLAP BOY FOUND BY HARRY POOLER AT OLANTA SAT. P. M.

Milford Dunlap, the twelve year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dunlap, patrons of the New Millport school, is back home today safe and sound after having been lost from home since Friday noon. Friday morning during the recess hour the boy was struck on the temple by a pitched ball and received permission to leave the school room because of being sick. He was seen about noon but after that no trace could be seen of him. A distracted family hunted all of Friday night, together with about fifty of the male citizenry of the New Millport region and continued their search on Saturday.

About two o'clock Saturday afternoon the boy was delivered back home by Harry Pooler, driver of the City bakery truck of Clearfield, who found the boy at Olanda although during the time he was lost the boy had covered a great deal of territory, apparently dazed and somewhat confused.

Some of the movements of the boy cannot be traced but he does recall having asked a man in an automobile to take him to Madera after he had gone to the Dunlap home and in the absence of the family procured his out and a revolver. This man drove the boy to Madera where the lad went to a movie show. Sometime Friday night the boy knocked at the door on the home of Don Werick and asked for shelter from the rain, which was given. In the morning the lad left Madera and walked down the New York Central tracks to Faunce where he again got a ride with an autoist to Olanda where Pooler recognized him.

Mr. and Mrs. Dunlap, together with the boy, were in Clearfield today returning thanks to Mr. Pooler and others who interested themselves in the search. They asked The Progress to thank their friends and neighbors for the time and automobiles so unselfishly devoted to the task of searching for their boy. They very much appreciate these courtesies in an hour darkened with fear and despair.

Mac DONALD TO QUIT TUESDAY; BALDWIN TO FORM CABINET

London, Nov. 2. (INS).—Ramsay MacDonald, Labor premier, whose party was defeated decisively when Tories rolled up a large majority in the parliamentary election, will resign tomorrow, it was definitely announced today in the London Daily Herald, official organ of the Labor party.

Stanley Baldwin, leader of the victorious Tories and former Premier, then will be summoned by the King and asked to form a new cabinet, a task which he is expected to finish by the end of the week.

Floyd Baugman and Thord Seavey of Lock Haven attended the football game here Saturday and spent the week-end with local relatives.

control must be ascertained and official dereliction, if any, punished, as well as justice meted out to the criminal assailants against law and order society.

"While peace and order have been restored by the military forces the episode has not ended so far as the courts and governor of the state are concerned. Perpetrators of this outrage, against the fair name of the city of Niles and the state of Ohio must be punished in a speedy, impartial and judicial manner after careful searching and complete investigation."

The governor added that reports from his special investigators showed that whiskey was abundant in the city until the arrival of troops and that many of those engaged in rioting were under its influence.

Niles, O., Nov. 1.—At least twelve persons were injured in sporadic street rioting today between Ku Klux Klan supporters and anti-klan factions, who clashed over a scheduled klan parade.

The parade was prevented by the arrival of national guardsmen, ordered here by Governor Donahay at the urgent request of Chief of Police Rounds.

Nine of the victims suffered gunshot wounds, two of them being reported in a critical condition. The other three were beaten by crowds.

E. G. Victor, of Farrell, Pa., shot in the heart and lungs and Joseph Murphy, of Niles, with a bullet lodged at the base of the brain, probably will die, hospital physicians said.

F. E. Coe, of Sebring, with a wound in the head and Elmer, of Youngstown, shot in the shoulder, were reported in serious condition.

Troopers Quell Riots
Order was restored shortly before 10 o'clock by the arrival of two companies of guardsmen from Warren and Youngstown, nearby. Several arrests were reported later.

Colonel J. S. Connolly, commander of the 115th infantry, immediately took over the police authority and issued a proclamation placing the community under strict military control.

Shortly after the issuance of the proclamation Captain R. W. Cullen, of New London, made several trips to the scene, advising the troops to go to their homes and prepare order.

When the order mobilizing the troops came after several hours of intermittent rioting of increasing violence. It followed several urgent requests for aid by Niles City officials and Sheriff John E. Thomas, of Trumbull county, during the last two days, which the governor declined to heed, taking the stand that the local authorities had power and authority to control the situation.

'Neutral' is Shot

The first victim of the violence, Frank McDermott, a 19-year-old youth, was shot from a passing automobile as he stood in the group of men on a street corner before day-break this morning. McDermott, the son of one of the leaders in the group which yesterday appealed to Mayor H. C. Kistler to revoke the permit for the parade, professed neutrality in the community feud.

Spokesmen for the klan interrupted the attack on their partisans as reprisals for the shooting of McDermott, and declared they would be prepared for further violence.

Prior to the attack on the robed automobile passengers, whose identity was not revealed, Chief Rounds described the city as "ominously quiet."

Knots of men were gathered on the street corners in the residential sections, between the klan assembling grounds and the headquarters of the

Speech Causes Loss of $10,000 A Year Post To Reading Attorney

One of the most expensive speeches ever made was one by Wellington M. Bertholet, former Reading city solicitor, in the Penn-Harris here last winter when he criticized the Governor's coal strike settlement here last fall. Bertholet had the unanimous endorsement of the Republican members of the Berks bar for the Republican appointment to the Berks bench, and was recommended to the Governor by the Republican political leaders of the county, but the Governor refused to appoint him and made his own selections after investigations. Bertholet is also a lawyer of ability. He is a coal dealer, too, and a State official of the coal dealers. In recent strikes and emergencies he has acted for the State as coal distributor. His speech criticizing the Pinchot coal agreement, increasing miners' wages, was widely heralded, but it apparently has cost him a $10,000-a-year judgeship.

Bertholet was not the only man with political backing whom the Governor turned down. More than a dozen men were recommended for the positions, and the Governor turned down practically all but those with strong political recommendations.

FORMER RESIDENT DIES

Clearfield friends will be sorry to learn of the death of Tom Cleary, a former well known resident of Clearfield, who passed away at his home in Harrisburg on Saturday last. Saturday's Patriot contained the following notice of his death:

Thomas J. Cleary died early this morning at his residence. High mass will be celebrated at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning in the St. Patrick's Cathedral by the Rev. Dr. D. J. Carey. Burial will be in the Mt. Calvary Cemetery. Cleary for many years had conducted a barber shop at 256 Hamilton street. He was a member of the Holy Name Society of his church and of the Harrisburg Council of the Knights of Columbus. He is survived by five sons, Lewis, Thomas Jr., Morris, William and Cyril and one sister, Miss Mary Cleary.

Samuel C. Stewart, who is now located at Allentown, Pa., is spending a few days with his mother at her home on North Second street.

Mrs. Esther Lydick and children left Sunday for Pittsburgh where Mrs. Lydick has accepted a position with her brother James Delmer, of the Delmer Electric Co.

Flaming Circle, apparently awaiting the parade.

Sheriff Thomas said, soon after noon, that a reassuring factor in the situation was the failure of crowds from surrounding communities to rush into Niles. His survey indicated few, if any, had been attracted to the city, he said.

Washington, Nov. 3.—Members of the Senate Committee which investigated the financing of the Presidential campaign were still uncertain today as to what report they would make to the country on the eve of the election.

Meeting in executive session in the office of chairman Borah, the committee received final statements of receipts and disbursements from the treasurers of the three major political parties and went over some of the evidence presented here and in Chicago in support of the charges that both the Republicans and Progressives have not accounted for all the money used in the campaign.

Havana, Cuba, Nov. 3 (INS).—Gen. Gerardo Machado, Liberal candidate for the Presidency, polled a sixty-thousand majority of Cuba's popular vote in Saturday's election and will receive 125 out of the total 139 electoral votes according to official tabulations from nearly completed returns today.

General Mario Menocal, conservative candidate and Machado's only opponent, has issued a manifesto alleging fraud in connection with the election. The vote, however, is not generally considered close enough to warrant a contest.

No serious disorders were reported on election day or since.

Tomorrow there will be submitted to the voters of Pennsylvania the question whether a convention shall be held for the revision of the Constitution of the state. The wording of the question on the ballot is as follows:

Shall a constitutional convention be held in the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-six, as provided in the act of Assembly approved the 12th day of June, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-three?

If a majority vote "Yes", the convention will meet at the state Capitol on the second Tuesday of January, 1926, and must conclude its session not later than August 1, 1926. There will be 150 delegates, three being elected in each of the 50 senatorial districts of the state. Nominations for delegates will be made at the party primaries in 1925. Each voter at the primary may vote for only two candidates for nomination as delegates for his party, and the two persons polling the highest vote in the primary of each party will have their names placed on the ballot for the November, 1925, election. (Persons who wish to run independently for delegate also are permitted to have their names placed on the final ballot after filing nomination papers with the requisite number of signatures.) At the 1925 election each voter may vote for two delegates to the convention, and the three candidates in the district receiving the highest vote will be elected delegates. This arrangement, known as "limited voting", is designed to secure representation of the minority party in each district.

Members of the convention will receive a salary of $1000, traveling expenses (twenty cents a mile) for one trip to and from the convention, and an allowance of $100 for postage, stationery, etc. As this remuneration is very slight for what may involve seven months of difficult labor in a Harrisburg summer, it is hoped that service in the convention will appeal to those who desire to serve the Commonwealth in a most important cause rather than to those who seek publicity and self-interest.

The convention may submit a proposed Constitution as a whole or may submit separately such parts as it thinks best. Under this plan, the convention may submit a remodeled Constitution containing provisions meeting with general approval and thus secure its adoption, while propositions against which objections may be urged can be separately considered by the voters and ratified or rejected by them without jeopardizing the success of the main body of the Constitution itself.

The Constitution and proposals prepared by the convention must be in the hands of the Secretary of the Commonwealth by the first Monday of September, 1926, who must publish it in newspapers and send copies to voters upon request. The voters of the state will express their approval or disapproval of the Constitution at the election of November, 1926.

The old Constitution has served its purpose very well the past 50 years. It could be improved, but it might be made much worse. It might be well to let well enough alone.

NEW YORK IS BATTLE GROUND

or South Dakota 5—a total of 29—which the C. O. P. managers feel fairly confident of carrying. Granted these, it would give Coolidge 309 in the College.

Importance Of New York. Here again the importance of New York is seen. Subtract New York's block of 45 from this 309 table and it would leave Calvin Coolidge with but 264 votes in the Electoral College two short of a majority.

The actual La Follette strength is the question mark of the whole business. If he carries nothing but his own Wisconsin, then the Republican managers feel they have pretty easy sailing. Give him a sweep in the West, give him the six states that his most optimistic supporters accord him, Iowa, Minnesota, the two Dakotas, Washington and Wisconsin, totalling 55 Electoral votes, and it is well within the range of possibility that the House of Representatives may be called upon to choose the next President.

La Follette's maximum and minimum hopes are confined in narrower lines. His minimum, of course, is Wisconsin, with 13. His maximum embraces, in addition to the fifty-five listed above, the states of Nevada, 3; Nebraska 8; Montana 4; California 12; and Arizona and New Mexico, with 8 each, making a grand total of 83.

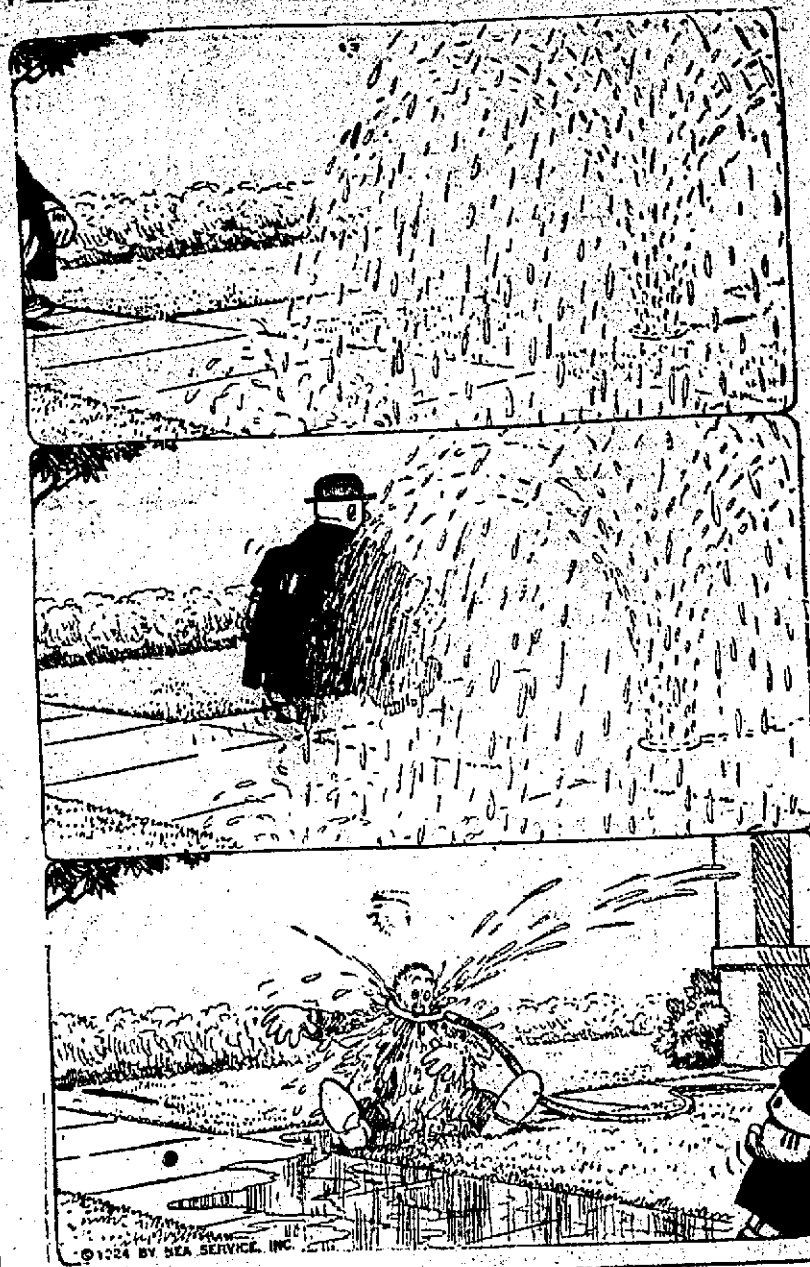

The cockpit is in New York so far as the major parties are concerned. Canny Wall Street, its finger on the hectic pulse of the Empire State, is betting 8 and 9 to 1 on Coolidge's carrying New York State, and by the same token, winning the election.

With his back to the wall, and fighting shoulder to shoulder with Tammany, John W. Davis is battling for these 45 votes that run from the Atlantic on the east to the Great Lakes on the west. That it is not altogether a losing fight is exemplified by the remarkable drift of labor to his standard and away from La Follette's in this closing week. The biggest trades unions in New York have flopped this week. The ultimate effect of this can only be disclosed on November 4th.

ARREST MADE WILL NO DOUBT STOP THE AUTO THIEVING

For some time petty thieves have been rummaging and looting automobiles parked upon the streets of the town at night adjacent to the business district. Front street in the vicinity of the Junior High School building, has been an especially popular section for these thieves to get in their work and many tires, (mostly Fords,) tool bags, blankets, etc., have been taken almost every Saturday night or other special occasion when people assembled in town.

The police have been hard at work trying to locate the thieves, their activities having resulted in cutting down the complaints considerably the past couple of weeks. Saturday evening however, a motorist from a nearby section, who came to town to do some shopping, found that his car had been rifled of blanket, jack and tool bag and straight way reported the robbery to the police.

Chief McMullin and officer Woolridge hustled down to the vicinity of Upper Witmer Park to investigate the robbery and when they reached the Junior High School building a second automobilist gave them a similar tale of woe. The officers then proceeded to make a careful search of the neighborhood and the rays of the Chief's flashlight disclosed a part of the stuff taken from the cars where it had been placed by the thieves in the rear of Ross & Woods store.

Secreting himself to await the return of the fellow the Chief remained there for at least an hour. At the end of that time he was relieved by Officer Woolridge. Shortly after taking his hiding place Officer Woolridge noted a young man nearing the spot. This fellow who proved to be a lad of 17 years, named Merrifield, of Mt Joy, gathered up the plunder and started to leave when the policeman placed him under arrest.

Merrifield implicated another young man named Charles White, also of Mt. Joy. Information was made against the lads before Squire Chappening by Chief McMullin. Merrifield was then placed in jail and will be given a hearing when the officers succeed in rounding up White.

Fourteen Glasses a Day the Limit. One of the first temperance societies was organized in Germany in 1000. The members agreed not to drink more than fourteen glasses of wine a day. But people generally drank more in those days than they did later. In 1830 a temperance society was formed in New Jersey. Its members promised not to drink more than one-half pint of rum or whiskey a day. In 1840 the Washingtonian society was organized in Baltimore, Md. Six of the leading drunkards of the city agreed to swear off forever and aye. In five years the pledge had been signed by 650,000 persons.

Better Than Kerosene. Alcohol is the best thing to use in cleaning the sewing machine. If applied with absorbent cotton held in a small pair of forceps the fingers can be kept clean, and the oil and dust will be found to disappear very quickly. Alcohol does not leave its traces on the material you are sewing on, as kerosene is very apt to do.

WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO ABOUT IT?

What we will have in these United States for the next four years depends on YOU.

You have one day in all of those 1460 days to decide, with your fellow citizens, what we shall have. That day is TOMORROW.

The privilege to cast a vote and thereby name our own governing heads is one that was bought with blood. Having won that privilege it becomes a duty to exercise it. VOTE.

The Progress is less concerned with how you vote than with the fact of your voting. While it is the opinion of this newspaper that Mr. Coolidge is the right man to direct the destinies of this nation for the next four years we have a stronger opinion of the duty of the citizen to vote.

The lines are clearly drawn. No longer is there a similarity between the parties, much less between the principal candidates.

A vote for La Follette is a vote for—no man knows what—except a change. Should he be elected this nation will go for a jump into unexplored realms of political experiments; a journey without a destination. He has done all he can to shake the confidence of men in men. Our nation is cemented by confidence. Do we want it torn apart? Our business is transacted with confidence as a basic factor. Without this confidence our commercial system will crumble and business stagnation with consequent unemployment is sure to follow.

A vote for Davis is a vote for a lower tariff, an experiment which this nation has before tried, and to its sorrow, especially this state whose industries are protected and whose wage earners are benefited by the tariff wall against cheap goods being shipped in. It is also a vote for another whirl at participation in Europe's domestic affairs with possible consequences too terrible to contemplate.

A vote for Coolidge is a vote to continue a man in office who has had the backbone to sit tight for an economy in government policy which has already greatly reduced the cost of government and affected a twenty-five per cent reduction in income taxes, who has resisted every effort made to compel him to play politics and make a grandstand appeal for votes, and who, more than anything else, puts the issue of the maintenance of our American form of government and its institutions above every other consideration.

How different are these policies and these men! Surely among them you will find a choice, and once having found that choice, do not only vote for that choice but vote for his supporters. Whatever your convictions, vote the ticket STRAIGHT.

(Cedar Rapids Gazette)

WHAT WISCONSIN THOUGHT OF HIM. EXTRACT FROM JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 8, LAWS OF WISCONSIN, SPECIAL SESSION, 1918.

"The people of the State of Wisconsin always have stood and always will stand squarely behind the national government in all things which are essential to bring the present war to a successful end, and we condemn Senator Robert M. La Follette and all others who have failed to see the righteousness of our nation's cause, who have failed to support our government in matters vital to the winning of the war, and we denounce any attitude or utterance of theirs which has tended to incite sedition among our country and to injure Wisconsin's fair name before the free people of the world."

RESOLUTION OF THE ANNUAL STATE MEETING OF CITY SUPERINTENDENTS OF SCHOOLS OF MADISON, WISCONSIN, OCTOBER 4, 1917.

"Whereas, one of the chief duties and privileges of the teachers in the state of Wisconsin is to teach patriotism and to hold before the youth of our nation the ideals of liberty, democracy and the support of the government; and

"Whereas, the words and teachings of Robert M. La Follette are diametrically opposed to those ideals, and

"Whereas, his continuance as a member of the senate of the United States will give his words a prominence entirely out of proportion to their value as an expression of an individual, and

"Whereas, had he been an ordinary citizen he would have been interned ere this for his seditious utterances, therefore,

"Be it resolved, by the city superintendents of the state of Wisconsin, that we heartily disapprove and repudiate any and all of the seditious utterances of said Robert M. La Follette as being absolutely unrepresentative of the people of the state of Wisconsin, and respectfully petition the United States senate to promptly expel him and thus give the people of Wisconsin the right to hold up their heads without shame.

"Resolved further, that a copy of this resolution be sent to the committee on privileges and elections of the United States senate."

WHAT THEODORE ROOSEVELT SAID SEPTEMBER 4, 1917, AT KANSAS CITY:

"Senator La Follette is at this moment loyally and efficiently serving one country—Germany. He is acting in such fashion as to make him one of the most active enemies of this country and a most sinister enemy of democracy. He claims and it is emptiest of all claims, to stand for democracy. He is doing everything in his power to enthrone autocracy under the German flag throughout the world by the attitude he is now taking toward the war. He is showing himself the worst enemy that democracy has now alive."

THIS IS HOW LA FOLLETTE VOTED ON WAR MEASURES:

March 2, 1917—against Bill permitting merchantmen to arm themselves against submarines.

April 4, 1917—against declaring war with Germany.

April 27, 1917—against consideration of Conscription Act.

April 28, 1917—against the Roosevelt volunteers.

April 28, 1917—against Conscription bill.

May 1, 1917—endeavors to substitute referendum on Conscription for the bill as passed in order to delay national war activities.

May 14, 1917—against the passage of the bill providing penalties for espionage.

May 17, 1917—against conference report and final passage

MAKE POLITICS INTERESTING

By FLORENCE DAVIES

Listen to this, mothers! A Michigan University professor turns politician and runs for the Senate. He gets back home from a speaking tour feeling sad. It isn't his political prospects that make him sad; neither is it the state of the country or the crops. It's the young people.

They don't care, he says. The young folks aren't interested in politics. In the old days the first voters and their younger brothers were out with Dad to attend the political meetings. Today, he points out that in all the meetings he addressed there were less than 200 people who were under 32 years of age.

That isn't a very hopeful sign for the future. The churches, the newspapers, the stores, the women's clubs, all know that the youngsters of today are the members, the leaders, the buyers, of tomorrow. The party leaders must know that the young people of today are the leaders of tomorrow. If the boys and girls of today just "don't care" to go with Dad and Mother to the political meeting around the corner, they are going to find themselves facing the duties of citizenship in a self-governing country without having the slightest idea of what it's all about.

Here's where mother might take a hand. Women's suffrage doesn't necessarily mean women office holders, but it does mean women citizens, which in turn means women voters.

When mother thinks it's her business to go to the political meetings, to hear the candidate for herself, to size them up in that particularly intuitive way which a woman has, the young people in the home will soon want to go along.

The trouble with all this talk about women not being good citizens is that everybody always refers to it as a duty. Who wants to do a thing just because she should?

The truth of the matter is that a political meeting is a mighty interesting performance. Once a woman finds out that there's some fun in politics, or rather in following political meetings and sizing up the candidates for herself, you'll see the standing room sign hung out.

Perhaps if we women began by not taking the whole business quite so seriously we might find ourselves getting more interested, and by the way, too many of us start out with the foregone conclusion that there is something crooked, something sinister, something a little suspicious about politics.

"Don't give in to them, don't let them put a thing over on you, fight them every inch of the way," cried a club woman to a member of one of the state committees of one of the national parties, referring to the members of the committee. The club woman wasn't quite sure just what it was that had to be fought, but she knew politicians would bear watching.

But the women who are really taking an active interest in politics have passed the fearful stage. They are learning to accept the limitations and use the power of a great organization.

It now remains for them to take their sons and daughters along with them, so that tomorrow's voters will be ready for their responsibilities.

RADIO KNIFE USED SUCCESSFULLY

radio, at, I am informed, 3,000,000 oscillations a second. I will endeavor to tell you what it does.

The frequency is so great that as the knife cuts it coagulates the blood, automatically sealing the blood vessels. This eliminates bleeding from the wound. The knife sterilizes itself and saves us much time. It also sterilizes the wound. I am also told that it leaves the wound in such a condition that healing is twice as rapid as when the ordinary surgical knife is used.

You can see what this will mean to surgery of the future. Bloodless and absolutely clean operations. Rapid recovery by the patient. Gentlemen, you are seeing something today well worth noting.

The knife, invented recently by an eminent Chicago surgeon, was brought to Philadelphia for experiment by Doctor Hirst, known as one of the leading surgeons on maternity cases. It is understood that the professor will make his opinion known shortly to the American Medical Association.

The inventor of the knife claims that its greatest benefit will be in operating on cancer cases. It will not only make the clean, rapidly healing incisions, but the high frequency current will kill the cancer germs and heal the disease parts, he claims.

The great oscillating electric force with its healing and sterilizing qualities will be cancer's greatest foe," he has announced. "The knife will soon be used, I predict, by every great surgeon in treating cancer. It will take the place of all serums.

Cuts Bone Like Butter
"As the knife cuts its way thru the flesh it seals the tissues, much as a singeing in a barber shop seals the tips of the hair. In cancer cases it will make possible the complete removal of the diseased parts. I think that the knife, properly handled, can effect outright cancer cures."

It is claimed that the radio knife, in reality not a knife at all, but a pin point of flashing electric current, can take the place of the ordinary operating knife in all cases except where layers of fat must be cut thru. Flesh and bone will part before it like soft butter under a knife, it is said.

It will not cut thru fat, it is explained, as that form of tissue is a non-conductor. The principal on which the knife is based is the ready response of the body to electric current.
The high-frequency current from the radio set passes completely thru the body. A wire carries the current to the end of the "knife." The current passes out of the body to a copper plate directly under the part being operated upon, and another wire carries the current back to the radio set.

Doctor Hirst performed two operations in his clinic Saturday morning with the ordinary operating knife. Then, when the third patient was brought in, he said:

"Gentlemen, I am trying something new this morning. I am experimenting with something I know little of. It appears to me to be one of the greatest inventions of modern times. It is a surgical knife operated by that thing we have heard so much about and know so little of—radio.
"All I can say to you is watch closely and see what I see."

Mange Mites of Hogs Cause Loss

Pest Is Most Troublesome During Cold Months When Hogs Are Marketed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Heavy losses of pork products due to mange mites of hogs have been reported lately to the United States Department of Agriculture by its inspectors in the Central West. In addition to being an irritation to hogs, resulting in general unthriftiness, mange mites cause meat losses running into hundreds of thousands of dollars annually, according to recent information obtained.

Reports by J. O. Wilson, chief veterinary inspector of the bureau of animal industry stationed in South Dakota, are now being studied by department specialists from an economic as well as from a veterinary standpoint. Through the courtesy of H. F. Vecken, superintendent of a large packing house in Sioux Falls, S. D., Doctor Wilson obtained sufficient evidence of avoidable losses to suggest concerted action in reducing the ravages of the mange parasite.

Damage Vital Parts.
Fully 40 per cent of the hogs slaughtered in South Dakota during the winter months of 1923-24 showed evidence of the mange mites, though only about one-half of that number were sufficiently affected as to cause definite losses. The mange parasites damage the hams, bacon and pickles principally—the parts of the hog that are of greatest value. The pest is most troublesome during the colder months, when most hogs are marketed.

The damage to hog carcasses caused by the mites assumes the form of roughened skins and inflammation. In some cases the meat is entirely unfit for food. In other instances the injury places the pork products from such hogs in the lower grades, which have a reduced market value of from 3 to 5 cents. The observations made in South Dakota are believed to be typical of other important swine-growing states.

Loss Preventable.
The United States Department of Agriculture points out that losses due to mange mites are largely preventable. Treatment consists in the application of various simple remedies, ranging from mixtures of kerosene and lard to specially prepared medicated dips. The hogs may be treated by hand application, hog oils, spraying, medicated hog wallows, or by dipping. In applying the treatment swine owners should always treat the entire herd, whether all animals show infection or not. Medicated hog wallows are one of the most practical means of reducing mange-mite infection, since the instinct habit of hogs is to wallow in water. By medicating the water in properly constructed wallows the remedies take effect with a minimum expenditure of money, time and labor.

Farmers' Bulletin 1035, "Hog Mites and Hog Mange," discusses practical methods of control and eradication.

Handling Clay Soils Is Most Difficult Problem

Of all the various types of soil to be found, none when properly handled are more productive than the heavy clay. The very fineness of these soils gives them a large water-holding capacity, which will adapt them to the production of small grains and grasses.

The management of these soils presents special problems for consideration. Their fineness gives them a tendency to bake and to require more than the usual amount of labor in cultivation. The lack of sufficient surface or underdrainage makes them cold and wet in the spring, and when there is a lack of vegetable or organic matter, they are hard to work and less productive.

One of the great drawbacks with this type of soil is the fineness of the soil particles. To offset this condition the farm practice should be so arranged that the operations will systematically open up and make these soils more porous. Special attention must be given to the time and type of plowing and cultivation. Heavy clay soils should be fall plowed when the moisture content is right. If worked when wet, they are apt to puddle and bake. While it is necessary to plow these soils deeply, the depth should be lowered gradually. The early working of these soils, in the spring, is most important.

Hessian Fly Infestation

Volunteer wheat is one of the greatest sources of Hessian fly infestation to fall-sown wheat. Conditions that are favorable to the germination of volunteer wheat are conducive also to the early emergence of the fly. Since this is the only food present, the flies infest it and later, broods attack the regular crop. The destruction of all volunteer wheat before planting is, therefore, an important step in Hessian fly control.

Cutting Soy Bean Hay

Soy beans may be cut for hay at any time between the full bloom stage, and the stage when the leaves begin to turn yellow, about five weeks later.

Yield, ease of curing, and quality of hay will mainly determine the time to cut. The largest yield obtainable at one cutting is secured by cutting when about one-fourth of the leaves are yellow.

RED CROSS DUTY TO AID VETERANS

Spends Nearly Four Millions in Year to Lessen Burdens of Disabled Soldiers.

SERVES 63,700 IN HOSPITALS

Every Case Is Given Individual Service—Assists Families of These Men Everywhere.

Washington.—The need of individual assistance by ex-service men and their families from the Red Cross is as pressing today as it was immediately after the end of the World War. For six years this work has been foremost of all Red Cross services, and in emphasizing the steady public support of this work the Red Cross National Headquarters urges the largest enrollment this year during the membership campaign opening on Armistice Day, November 11.

Nearly four million dollars of Red Cross funds spent for disabled veterans and their dependents during the year ended June 30 last presents some idea of the magnitude of this work. The current year, it is estimated, will call for still further disbursements of funds for the reason that the Red Cross, through more than 3,500 Chapters in as many communities in the United States, has been called upon to help the ex-service men in making out their applications for the adjusted compensation granted in the so-called bonus law.

58,767 Soldier Cases a Month

The Red Cross work for the disabled soldier is designated "home service," for it gives individual attention to the man and his family approximating the interest and loving care of the home. Such service in the hospitals, camps, soldiers' homes and sanatoria, averaged 33,951 cases a month during the year. Assistance to ex-service men and their dependents averaged 58,767 cases a month. In addition, the Red Cross in the last twelve months provided 33,000 recreation and entertainment events in the hospitals and camps.

Thus the Red Cross, symbolized as the "Greatest Mother," still watches over these many thousands of men, comforts them, helps to lighten the burden of their physical reconstruction, and in their homes lifts some of the burdens from their "own people."

Work in Communities Increases

The home service of the Red Cross was the most pressing duty of 2,809 Chapters, an increase of 182 communities where problems affected by the war veteran's condition required solution through immediate and intelligent assistance. The Chapters alone expended some $2,000,000 in this work.

The transient disabled soldier, usually suffering from disability or tuberculosis, is almost everywhere a grave problem. From national funds the past year $173,076.36 was expended in helping the Chapters to care for these wandering men.

According to government report there are 4,800 veterans in civilian institutions, and in the national homes for soldiers the complications are increasing. The large groups of patients whose claims have been denied, of veterans of foreign wars, and the great number of men permanently resident in these institutions call for Red Cross work which cannot be avoided nor denied.

Definite Service to 73,700

Of a total of $4,500 ex-service men in hospitals and other institutions 73,700 were rendered a definite and specialized service by the Red Cross. In a single month 4,185 new cases were presented and a total of 29,125 was acted upon—figures which serve to illustrate the magnitude of the information and claim service ensuring the attention of Red Cross workers. New veteran legislation amending the War Risk Act which extends many additional rights to disabled ex-service men will open thousands of cases and require still greater Red Cross service.

When Congress granted a charter to the American Red Cross it charged the organization with the duty to act as "the medium of communication between the American people and their Army and Navy." This responsibility to the enlisted men and their families is met every year without restriction.

Serves Men on Active Service

The extent of this Red Cross activity during the last year embraced a total of 195,246 cases. There were 36,995 separate soldiers' and sailors' claims; 20,316 investigations of home conditions; 14,121 cases related to discharges, furloughs, etc. Assistance was given in 35,638 instances for personal, business or family problems; 744,220 visits were made to the sick or disabled, and nearly 40,000 letters and telegrams dispatched to the homes of enlisted men.

From June to September at the numerous military training camps the Red Cross provided information and home service to the trainees, also instruction in First Aid and Life-Saving. The entertainment and recreation events at the various Army and Navy hospitals reached nearly 9,500 during the year, and occupational therapy in nine Naval hospitals gave constructive and beneficial results and occupied the time of patients in the making of useful and ornamental things.

Mrs. L. A. Bant is improving slowly at the hospital from an attack of Typhoid fever.

Curwensville's
Own Column

Mrs. S. C. Russell after spending a week in New York City and seeing her sister, Mrs. De Grosse and her husband off on their return trip to Paris, is home.

Samuel P. Arnold, located in Pittsburgh and engaged in the lumber trade, was a Curwensville visitor on Saturday.

Joe Lines, who has been working in a camp in Westmoreland county, during the summer months has returned to Grampian and will open a public restaurant for the winter.

Mr. Gallagher, a former employee at Penn. H. & L. tannery, but removed to Erie several years ago, is visiting with his son Edward Gallagher, Thompson street.

Following, a time which every owner dreads, passed off in Curwensville Friday night without any special devilry being perpetrated by the youngsters. The rainfall during the evening put a damper on plans which had been planned. The making up of windows with soap and water was about all that was done. The Mummer parade which had been planned failed to materialize, those who were to participate being a trifle afraid of water, only a few of the artist proclivities.

Messrs. Mose and Lester Whittaker, Harry Riddle and Harry Smith, four young men who left Curwensville early in the spring to make a auto trip from coast to coast, returned home last Thursday. They had some queer experiences during their long voyage but heartily enjoyed every hour of it.

The H. S. foot ball team played the Cooper team last Saturday on the home grounds. Score 24-6 in favor of H. S.

Messrs. Norris, Thompson and MacIntyre had themselves over Calaway last Friday to hunt for deer. They returned without sighting a single deer, but the experience was well worth the trial. There was plenty of "bar" meat in that section, but the animal did not seem to present themselves for slaughter, by Clearfield county hunters.

The "no hunting" proclamation by the Governor until after a rainfall on Friday, caused many long drawn faces by those who had secured hunting licenses and expected to see advantage of it the first day of the season. The rain came in plenty and of a sufficient quantity to justify a hunt. Every man and boy in the section who had a gun or was in the woods but the count of game brought in during the evening was very limited none killing the animal for one day. Travelers are hardly safe going on the highway some claiming that it became necessary to keep from wounds or persons killed.

The barn of Sam Bartlebaugh over in the Turkey hill section was burned to the ground Saturday evening, together with a team of horses, cattle and grain contents. Origin of the fire unknown.

A community rally of a six reel motion picture entitled "Lest we Forget" will be given in the M. E. church on Wednesday evening the 5th. The admission is free, although an offering will be lifted.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Gray and family and Mrs. George Gray, have returned from Huntingdon, Indiana, after a month's visit among relatives of Mrs. George Gray. The trip was made by auto.

Willis Bradley, who was operated on at the Clearfield hospital several weeks ago for acute appendicitis, is home and mending rapidly.

Today, November 3rd, 1918, Austria surrendered to Allied armies but we do not hear much about it these days.

SURPRISE PARTY AND REUNION
HELD ON MOTHER'S BIRTHDAY

Nine of her eleven living children and their families to the number of 55 surprised Mrs. Rebecca M. Shaw at her home on William street Saturday afternoon by gathering there to celebrate her 66th birthday. By enlisting their mother away on a visit in the afternoon, the children were able to gather at the home and prepare a sumptuous dinner before time for the evening meal, so that upon her return Mrs. Shaw was greeted by a shower of well wishes and presents from her loved ones.

It was a very delightful occasion and was very much enjoyed by the entire group.

Out-of-town guests were: Mrs. Pursey Wallace and family, of Hyde; Mrs. Cyrus Hoover, of Manor; Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Shaw and Miss Lily McCaleb, of Pittsburgh, and Curtin Taylor and family, of Goshen. Those from Clearfield were: Mr. and Mrs. G. V. Shaw and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Zeigler and family, Mr. and Mrs. Russell A. Shaw and family, Mr. and Mrs. Merle C. Shaw and family, Frank P. Shaw and daughter Irena, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford A. Shaw, Miss Rose Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Steele, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Palmer, and Mrs. Creighton Graham.

An additional gas well was struck on the land of the Clinton Gas & Oil Company in northern Clinton county. The wells of the company are near Farmersley Fork. The new well was drilled two miles from the eleven or twelve other wells and at 11,000 feet a well that is giving 87,000 cubic feet of gas was struck. belief that La Follette's sword has been two-edged—that he has cut deeply and, for all practical purposes, equally into both major parties. He has hurt the Republicans in the west by taking such normally Republican states as Wisconsin and North Dakota out of the Republican column but he has hurt the Democrats in such states as New York. For instance, by appealing to the labor group.

The engrossing spectacle of a three-cornered fight for the presidency has, to a considerable extent, overshadowed the all-important fight for control of congress.

More than one-third of the Senate seats, to be exact, are at stake in tomorrow's balloting, and an enormous House of Representatives.

Many states the conflicts are complicated by local quarrels and factional differences that some surprising paradoxes may be expected.

One example of this may be seen in Colorado. Most of the "experts" and political prophets give the six electoral votes of this state to Coolidge, and yet most of them are inclined to the belief that Colorado will elect two Democratic senators. The senatorial fight, at any rate, is close.

Similarly, in Indiana, a majority of the expert opinion gives the state to Coolidge and the Democratic gubernatorial candidate, Dr. Carlton B. McCulloch.

These are but two examples of the many confusing cross currents involved in tomorrow's balloting. Experienced observers have predicted that there will be more ticket scratching tomorrow than in any national election in recent history.

Barring landslides—and there are comparatively few forecasters who anticipate any such event—it is altogether probable that existing lines in congress will not be materially altered. In the House, the Republicans may increase their present narrow majority, but in the Senate, they will be fortunate to do so. This is due entirely to bitter local fights, such as, for instance, obtains in Oklahoma, Colorado, Rhode Island, Delaware, Wyoming and a variety of others.

The Ku Klux Klan and a variety of issues that do not intrude prominently into the presidential contest feature many of these senatorial fights, and will have a large share in determining the result.

Today was largely a day of rest and preparation on the part of the principals in tomorrow's referendum. Everywhere today party managers were directing their efforts to getting out a vote that will shatter all existing records.

Washington, Nov. 2.—Confident that tomorrow's election will return him to the White House by a landslide proportionate to that of 1920, President Coolidge devoted himself today to the preparation of the "last word of the campaign"—the radio speech he will deliver tonight at 10 o'clock.

The President will confine himself this evening to an appeal to every citizen to "do his duty to his country and vote." With 24 radio stations covering the entire country hooked up for the event, the Presidential utterances are expected to be heard by the largest number of people ever reached one voice.

New York, Nov. 2.—John W. Davis, Democratic Presidential nominee, rested today on the labors of his three months' drive for the White House, confident of success in tomorrow's election.

While his New York headquarters was the scene of great activity, Davis remained in seclusion at his local Valley, Long Island home.

His only engagement, before the opening of ballot boxes was a scheduled address, over the radio tonight. The nominee will "take the air" at WPAI, a New York station at 9:15 tonight, speaking to his unseen audience for thirty minutes. Seven other broadcasting stations located in Washington, Schenectady, Pittsburgh, Hastings, Neb.; St. Louis, Memphis and Chicago, will carry his final address from coast to coast.

CON ALLEN NOT SO WELL

Ex-Sheriff and ex-Postraster Con Allen, of DuBois, who is a patient at the DuBois hospital suffering from an attack of pleuro-pneumonia, is again quite seriously ill. He had been improving for several days but took a turn for the worse yesterday. Dr. Royce, a Pittsburgh chest specialist, called to DuBois for consultation by the local physicians.

"West of the Water Tower" is one of the biggest sensations the book world has ever known.

Just imagine the picture possibilities of such an intensely dramatic study of small town life, with its powerful story of reckless love—a story crowded with enough sensational scenes for ten ordinary pictures.

Think of Glenn Hunter, Broadway's favorite young star, as Guy, the town's smartest boy, and May McAvoy as Bec, the town's prettiest girl—who believe their great love is only a matter between them and God—who lock their secret securely in their own hearts—till Fate whispers the stark truth to the boy's father—a bigoted, rugged minister—who precipitates a tremendous scene that alone could make any picture a smashing success. But this is just ONE of the many big moments which make this, without doubt, the outstanding picture drama of recent years.

That young men are being selected to head big corporations was again evidenced in the successor chosen for president of Sears-Roebuck & Company, to succeed Julius Rosenwald. It is Charles M. Kittle, former vice president of the Illinois Central Railroad, who is only 41 years old, and who started life as a water boy for a section gang when 14 years old and rapidly rose to the senior vice presidency. Mr. Rosenwald becomes chairman of the board of directors, after serving 14 years as president. Another young man to enter the organization of the world's largest mail order concern is General R. E. Wood, former vice president of Montgomery Ward & Company, where he was in charge of merchandising.

RECORD VOTE SEEMS CERTAIN; COOLIDGE VICTORY PREDICTED IN EVERY QUARTER

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent.)
New York, Nov. 3.—Tomorrow's march to the polls will be the greatest electoral trek the world has ever witnessed.

Unless the managers of all parties and all candidates are badly off in their estimates, fully 30,000,000 Americans will ballot to determine their government, local, state and national and eclipse by some four million their record vote of 1920 when 27,332,332 citizens recorded their preference in the Harding-Cox contest.

The record breaking proportions of the vote was about the only thing that the leaders of all parties have agreed upon. On virtually every other aspect of tomorrow's great referendum, there were today the usual sharp differences of opinion, conflicting claims, and confusing cross currents.

The attitudes of the three parties today, 24 hours in advance of the election, might be described thus:

The Republicans are supremely, even vociferously confident of a Coolidge-Dawes victory.

The Democrats are quietly hopeful for Davis and Bryan.

The independents are militantly expectant of a huge popular vote, around which to build a new and permanent third party in American politics.

Certainly every surface indication points to the election of Calvin Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes—all the "experts" have agreed that it looks like a Republican victory in the electoral college, all of the straw votes, state polls and other barometric gauges have indicated a Coolidge sweep, and canny old Wall Street was betting 11 to 1 today that Coolidge would succeed himself.

The more cautious among the forecasters of Coolidge victory were accepting him today a bare majority in the electoral college. The more sanguine estimate him as high as 350 votes in the college, which would be a sweeping victory. Notwithstanding all this, Democratic leaders refused today to be downhearted—at least hardly so.

Chas. L. Shaver, chairman of the Democratic national committee, said today that the hope of the Democrats is in the great silent vote that does not express itself in straw votes, precinct caucuses and other pre-election indications.

It was just a great, silent vote in 1920, Democratic leaders pointed out, that elected Woodrow Wilson over Charles E. Hughes, when every surface indication pointed to a Hughes victory, just as every surface indication now points to a Coolidge victory. In that memorable year, too, the "experts" elected Hughes, Wall Street bet on Hughes and even staid Democratic journals conceded his election 8 to 1 on election night. Then, now, the east was predominantly Republican ticket. Wilson carried but two states east of the Mississippi and north of the Mason-Dixon line, out he won.

The Republican counter this line of reasoning by pointing to the fact that eight years ago there was not the confusing factor of a strong and militant independent candidacy such as La Follette's. While it is true, they say, that La Follette has cut heavily into Republican territory in the west, it is also true that the Wisconsin insurgent has deeply tapped the enormous labor vote that has usually been Democratic.

Impartial observers incline to the view that the election will be a close one.

SEE A FORESTER FIRST IF YOU WOULD HUNT

Harrisburg, Nov. 3 (INS).—The hunting season is not yet a closed question, Seth Gordon, Game Commission Secretary, warns, despite the rain which fell Friday night. The high winds of yesterday have dried out the forest's, he says, making them dry and increasing the fire danger.
Guns should call forest rangers daily, he declared, to save themselves from prosecution for violating Gov. Pinchot's proclamation.

First Accident Of The Local Hunting Season Sends Boy To Hospital

The first hunting accident to occur in this vicinity for the season of 1924 befell Clyde Fulton, 17 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fulton, of South Fourth street. He is a patient at the Clearfield Hospital suffering from shot wounds in both legs, both hands and about the chest.

Young Fulton, in company with his uncle William Lytton and Forest Root were hunting rabbits on Coal Hill, about one mile from town. About 9:30 in the morning the dogs jumped a rabbit and it ran down the hill past Root, who raised his gun and fired a charge of No. 6 shot after it. Fulton was standing on an old road forty or fifty yards below Root, who was not aware just where his fellow hunter was at the time.

Fulton saw the rabbit coming down the hill and throwing his gun to his shoulder was just in the act of firing at the rabbit. He was directly in line though hidden by the brush, of the hunter above him, and with the crack of Root's gun the load of shot peppered Fulton, two of the pellets entered each of his legs, a couple lodged in each of his outstretched arms, while several others struck him about the body.

The injured youth was hustled at once to the Clearfield Hospital where all of the shot were removed but one which had entered one of his lungs, and another that had lodged in his leg beyond the reach of a probe. He is resting comfortably at this time and is expected to fully recover from his wounds within a short time.

Game Might Scarce In Clearfield County; Few Limit Bags Are Taken

The hunting season, despite Governor Pinchot's "weather ban," opened in Clearfield county Saturday, the copious rain of Friday evening bringing joy to the hearts of the anxious nimrods, who had every arrangement completed for their participation in the first day's hunt.

The "early birds," those fellows who were up to greet the sun when he showed his nose up over the eastern hills, found woods and fields damp and in shape for rabbit trailing, although the thick carpet of leaves made it almost impossible to "still hunt" the wily pheasant close enough for a satisfactory shot at this late time. The cunningest of Pennsylvania's game birds. As a result the first day's bag was very much smaller than usual.

The "late comers" or afternoon hunters were out of luck entirely, as there were hunters enough in the woods in the morning to "fine tooth comb" every acre of likely looking rabbit and bird cover for miles around Clearfield, while by noon time the woods were almost as dry as the no rain had fallen the evening previous.

In addition to the adverse weather conditions both rabbits and birds are reported scarcer than at any other time during the past five years. There were very nearly 9300 hunters licensed to hunt Saturday. Not less than 9000 of them were in the woods. That in large measure explains the scarcity of game, and it appears as though it would get worse instead of better.

Mr. and Mrs. William Parks, Mr. and Mrs. Milford Helms and little daughter Audrey motored from Ridgway and spent the week-end with the Helmses of Third street.

Atlantic Moonshine Causes Death Of Well Known Sanborn Citizen

Poison moonshine again took its toll in this county when it added to its already large list the name of Stack Smeal, of Sanborn, who died in great agony yesterday afternoon after having taken several drinks of the "real stuff" a half hour previous to his death.

In company with his nephew, Smeal who is a bachelor, motored to Atlantic, near Houtzdale, during the afternoon, where they were offered several drinks apiece. The youth declined, but according to witnesses of the tragedy, Mr. Smeal accepted the invitation and drank three times from a bottle containing the poisoned beverage. Following the final drink the unfortunate man became deadly ill. He was rendered every assistance possible by his companions, being placed in an automobile and rushed to Houtzdale in an effort to locate a physician. Although he was unconscious when the party arrived there it was found that a spark of life still remained in his body. However, as he was being carried into the doctor's residence however, and before any medical aid could be rendered him.

Coroner J. I. Pollum of this city was notified of the death of the man last evening and will leave for Houtzdale this morning to make an investigation of the case.

The nature of the poisoning has not yet been determined, a detail which will be taken up when a complete investigation is made.

The dead man was about 32 years of age and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Smeal, of Sanborn. His mother is a sister of Edward C. John and Thomas Bauman, of Clearfield.

County Coroner Dr. J. I. Pollum was at the Court House this morning en route to Houtzdale, where the autopsy on the dead man will be held and a coroner's verdict rendered on the liability of the person furnishing the alleged fatal liquor to Smeal.

SWOPE, SECRETARY TO SENATOR PEPPER, QUITS HIS POST

Charles P. Swope, secretary to United States Senator George Wharton Pepper, has resigned. He will continue in the Senator's office at Washington until some time after the election. It is understood he plans to enter business in Washington.

Swope was appointed as secretary to the Senator the day before Pepper took his oath of office as a member of the Senate. At the time of appointment, Swope had been executive clerk in the Governor's office, then the latter part of the Sprout administration.

Prior to that he had acted as secretary to Senator Penrose during the war while Legion Taylor, Penrose's regular assistant, was in service. The reason for Swope's appointment was that it was realized that Pepper did not know the politics of Pennsylvania and had no experience which would teach him the ropes in Washington.

Swope knew the politics of the State and was placed in Pepper's office by Sprout and Harry Baker, Republican State chairman, to coach Pepper politically; and also knew the ropes of Washington from his experience in Penrose's office.

NEW YORK IS BATTLE GROUND FOR BOTH REPUBLICANS AND DEMOCRATS ALIKE

"As New York Goes So Goes The Nation" Seems To Be The Best Pre-Election Forecast This Year.

A TITANTIC STRUGGLE ON

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

New York, Nov. 3.—The Empire State's great block of 45 votes in the Electoral College is the hinge upon which Tuesday's election turns.

It explains why the managers of both Calvin Coolidge and John W. Davis have chosen to make this popularly state the "final battle ground."

In this campaign, complicated in the West as it is by the La Follette candidacy, the rival managers have tacitly agreed that "as goes New York, so goes the Nation." The pendulum, flying busily around every headquarters today, bear it out.

It is mathematically possible, of course, for either the Democrats or the Republicans to win without New York's 45 votes. But it is extremely improbable. Wilson won in 1916 without carrying New York, but by the narrowest possible squeak. His victory was the exception that proves the rule. To do it he had to sweep the West like a prairie fire—something that with La Follette running this year, neither party can hope to do.

For publicity purposes, of course, both Republican and Democratic managers are claiming everything in sight. The Democrats claim as high as 325 electoral votes, while the Republican estimates runs as high as 301. A majority is 266, but actually, none of them expect anything like these first figures.

From inside Democratic circles, there was obtained today a table that represents about the minimum of what the Democrats must do to win. And at the same time, it represents just about the maximum of Democratic hopes, irrespective of claims for publicity purposes.

Democratic Claims

This Democratic table follows:
Solid South: Alabama 12; Arkansas 9; Florida 6; Georgia 14; Kentucky 13; Louisiana 10; Mississippi 6; North Carolina 12; South Carolina 9; Texas 20; Virginia 12—total 127.

Border States: Tennessee 12; Oklahoma 10; Missouri 18; West Virginia 8; Maryland 8; Arizona 3; New Mexico 3—total 62.

Others: New Hampshire 4; Delaware 3; Colorado 6; Nebraska 8; New Jersey 14; Indiana 15; New York 45—total 95.

This makes a grand total of 284 votes, a margin of 18 over the 266 majority required for election. The defection of either New Jersey or Indiana and one of the tiny states could be suffered in this table and still the Democrats could win. But the loss of New York could not be suffered, nor have the Democrat managers been able to figure any combination of states outside of New York that would give Davis 266 in the College.

Of the states listed above, the Democrats count themselves certain of 189, the same comprising the Solid South and the Border States, normally Democratic territory. This is their minimum. In no event do the Democrats anticipate going below this figure.

Republican Claims

On the Republican side, the managers, while claiming totals as high as 391 in the Electoral College, actually expect to have around 300. The figure of 391 is based upon the Democrats, carrying nothing except what Cox carried, the low tide of Democratic accomplishment in modern political history, and La Follette carrying nothing except Wisconsin. This 391 then represents their maximum hopes.

Their minimum hopes run as low as 256, but no lower, according to the inside figures.

The "minimum table" of the Republican managers follows:
California 13; Colorado 6; Connecticut 7; Delaware 3; Idaho 4; Illinois 13; Indiana 15; Kansas 10; Maine 6; Massachusetts 18; Michigan 15; Nebraska 8; New Hampshire 4; New Jersey 14; New York 45; Ohio 24; Oregon 5; Pennsylvania 38; Rhode Island 5; Utah 4; Vermont 4; Wyoming 3—total 280.

This does not take into account Iowa 13; Nevada 3; Washington 8; (Continued on Page Three.)

RADIO KNIFE USED SUCCESSFULLY IN SURGICAL CLINIC

A major operation performed without a single drop of blood issuing from the knife wound was successful Saturday, when Dr. Barton Cook Hirst, professor of obstetrics in the University of Pennsylvania, experimented for the first time in Philadelphia with the most recent development of radio science, the radio surgical knife.

Before beginning his experiment, Doctor Hirst told the members of his clinic that a successfully performed operation with the radio knife would mark the beginning of a new era in surgery. When the operation, a particularly serious one, was over, the professor spread his hands in a gesture of relief, and said:

"You have seen something I did not believe was possible."

Doctor Hirst admitted to his clinic that he did not understand the knife, and asked the class to watch carefully what it did. They watched, and this is what they saw:

A black rubber tube, looking much like a black lead pencil, attached to what appeared to be an ordinary radio set. A high-powered electric motor being started and a flashing of bulbs in the radio set. An eminent surgeon rather gingerly taking up the black pencil-like cylinder. Nurses and other surgeons crowding close.

The tip of the black cylinder, the radio knife proper, lightly touched the flesh of the patient on the operating table. A sharp sizzling, resembling the sounds of sparks leaping from a spark plug, a little smoke, the smell of burning, and the flesh parted, leaving an absolutely bloodless incision. In a minute underlying tissues were laid bare, ready for the surgeon's deft hands to remove the cause of the trouble. Not a drop of blood to be seen.

Then Doctor Hirst turned to his clinic with what was unconsciously a dramatic gesture and explained:

"I am a beginner at this as much as you," he said, "and my amazement is as great as yours. Here you see a great development of modern science, a surgical knife operated by (Continued from Page Six.)"

NINE SHOT, 3 BEATEN IN NILES OUTBREAK, UNDER MARTIAL LAW

By S. J. GORDON
(I. N. S. Special Correspondent.)

Niles, Ohio, Nov. 3.—With order restored and about 25 persons, members of the K. K. K. and their sworn foe, the Knights of the Flaming Circle, under arrest, charged with inciting to riot, order had been restored in Niles today under the martial law proclamation of Gov. A. V. Donahy late Saturday.

"I expect to withdraw most of the troops today," General Ben-on W. Hough, commander of the Ohio national guards in command of the state troops, said this morning. "Order has been restored and local authorities should be amply able to take care of any sporadic outbursts that may come."

500 Guardsmen There.

Five hundred guardsmen, composed of units from Akron, Warren and Youngstown, were still patrolling the streets today, and the military were assisting local officials in gathering evidence to present to the courts against those charged with responsibility for the outbreak of racial hatred which resulted in a casualty list of 13, Saturday, one of whom may die.

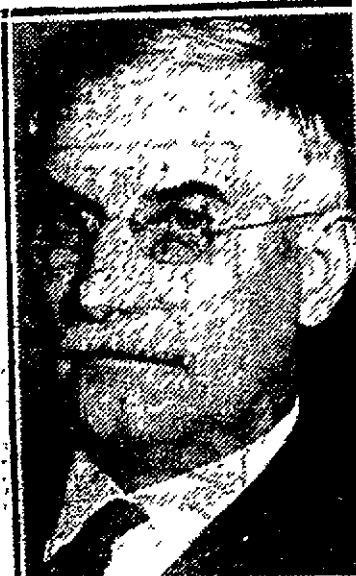

Police and military authorities this morning believe that the list of those injured in the many street clashes is actually much greater, and that a search of homes would reveal perhaps 50 who suffered from the clashes.

With order restored military authorities were turning their attention to the carrying out of the order issued by Gov. Donahy to Gen. Hough directing him to make a sweeping investigation of reasons behind the breaking down of civil authorities in Niles.

DUNLAP BOY FOUND BY HARRY POOLER AT OLANTA SAT. P. M.

Milford Dunlap, the twelve year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dunlap, patrons of the New Millport school, is back home today safe and sound after having been lost from home since Friday noon. Friday morning during the recess hour the boy was struck on the temple by a pitched ball and received permission to leave the school room because of being sick. He was seen about noon but after that no trace could be seen of him. A distracted family hunted all of Friday night, together with about fifty of the male citizenry of the New Millport region and continued their search on Saturday.

About two o'clock Saturday afternoon the boy was delivered back home by Harry Pooler, driver of the City bakery truck of Clearfield, who found the boy at Olanda although during the time he was lost the boy had covered a great deal of territory, apparently dazed and somewhat confused.

Some of the movements of the boy cannot be traced but he does recall having asked a man in an automobile to take him to Madera after he had gone to the Dunlap home and in the absence of the family procured his coat and a revolver. This man drove the boy to Madera where the lad went to a movie show. Sometime Friday night the boy knocked at the door on the home of Don Werick and asked for shelter from the rain, which was given. In the morning the lad left Madera and walked down the New York Central tracks to Faunce where he again got a ride with an autoist to Olanda where Pooler recognized him.

Mr. and Mrs. Dunlap, together with the boy, were in Clearfield today returning thanks to Mr. Pooler and others who interested themselves in the search. They asked The Progress to thank their friends and neighbors for the time and automobiles so unselfishly devoted to the task of searching for their boy. They very much appreciate these courtesies in an hour darkened with fear and despair.

Mac DONALD TO QUIT TUESDAY; BALDWIN TO FORM CABINET

London, Nov. 2. (INS).—Ramsay MacDonald, Labor premier, whose party was defeated decisively when Tories rolled up a large majority in the parliamentary election, will resign tomorrow, it was definitely announced today in the London Daily Herald, official organ of the Labor party.

Stanley Baldwin, leader of the victorious Tories and former Premier, then will be summoned by the King and asked to form a new cabinet, a task which he is expected to finish by the end of the week.

Floyd Baugman and Thord Sawyer of Lock Haven attended the football game here Saturday and spent the week-end with local relatives.

control must be ascertained and official dereliction, if any, punished, as well as justice meted out to the criminal assailants against law and order society.

"While peace and order have been restored by the military forces the episode has not ended so far as the courts and governor of the state are concerned. Perpetrators of this outrage, against the fair name of the city of Niles and the state of Ohio must be punished in a speedy, impartial and judicial manner after careful searching and complete investigation."

The governor added that reports from his special investigators showed that whiskey was abundant in the city until the arrival of troops and that many of those engaged in rioting were under its influence.

Niles, O., Nov. 1.—At least twelve persons were injured in sporadic street rioting today between Ku Klux Klan supporters and anti-klan factions, who clashed over a scheduled klan parade.

The parade was prevented by the arrival of national guardsmen, ordered here by Governor Donahay at the urgent request of Chief of Police Rounds.

Nine of the victims suffered gunshot wounds, two of them being reported in a critical condition. The other three were beaten by crowds.

E. G. Victor, of Farrell, Pa., shot in the heart and lungs and Joseph Murphy, of Niles, with a bullet lodged at the base of the brain, probably will die, hospital physicians said.

F. E. Coe, of Sebring, with a wound in the head and Elmer, of Youngstown, shot in the shoulder, were reported in serious condition.

Troopers Quell Riots
Order was restored shortly before 10 o'clock by the arrival of two companies of guardsmen from Warren and Youngstown, nearby. Several arrests were reported later.

Colonel J. S. Connolly, commander of the 115th infantry, immediately took over the police authority and issued a proclamation placing the community under strict military control.

Shortly after the issuance of the proclamation Captain R. W. Cullen, of New London, made several trips to the scene, advising the troops to go to their homes and prepare order.

When the order mobilizing the troops came after several hours of intermittent rioting of increasing violence. It followed several urgent requests for aid by Niles City officials and Sheriff John E. Thomas, of Trumbull county, during the last two days, which the governor declined to heed, taking the stand that the local authorities had power and authority to control the situation.

'Neutral' is Shot

The first victim of the violence, Frank McDermott, a 19-year-old youth, was shot from a passing automobile as he stood in the group of men on a street corner before day-break this morning. McDermott, the son of one of the leaders in the group which yesterday appealed to Mayor H. C. Kistler to revoke the permit for the parade, professed neutrality in the community feud.

Spokesmen for the klan interrupted the attack on their partisans as reprisals for the shooting of McDermott, and declared they would be prepared for further violence.

Prior to the attack on the robbed automobile passengers, whose identity was not revealed, Chief Rounds described the city as "ominously quiet."

Knots of men were gathered on the street corners in the residential sections, between the klan assembling grounds and the headquarters of the

Speech Causes Loss of $10,000 A Year Post To Reading Attorney

One of the most expensive speeches ever made was one by Wellington M. Bertholet, former Reading city solicitor, in the Penn-Harris here last winter when he criticized the Governor's coal strike settlement here last fall. Bertholet had the unanimous endorsement of the Republican members of the Berks bar for the Republican appointment to the Berks bench, and was recommended to the Governor by the Republican political leaders of the county, but the Governor refused to appoint him and made his own selections after investigations. Bertholet is also a lawyer of ability. He is a coal dealer, too, and a State official of the coal dealers. In recent strikes and emergencies he has acted for the State as coal distributor. His speech criticizing the Pinchot coal agreement, increasing miners' wages, was widely heralded, but it apparently has cost him a $10,000-a-year judgeship.

Bertholet was not the only man with political backing whom the Governor turned down. More than a dozen men were recommended for the positions, and the Governor turned down practically all but those with strong political recommendations.

FORMER RESIDENT DIES

Clearfield friends will be sorry to learn of the death of Tom Cleary, a former well known resident of Clearfield, who passed away at his home in Harrisburg on Saturday last. Saturday's Patriot contained the following notice of his death:

Thomas J. Cleary died early this morning at his residence. High mass will be celebrated at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning in the St. Patrick's Cathedral by the Rev. Dr. D. J. Carey. Burial will be in the Mt. Calvary Cemetery. Cleary for many years had conducted a barber shop at 256 Hamilton street. He was a member of the Holy Name Society of his church and of the Harrisburg Council of the Knights of Columbus. He is survived by five sons, Lewis, Thomas Jr., Morris, William and Cyril and one sister, Miss Mary Cleary.

Samuel C. Stewart, who is now located at Allentown, Pa., is spending a few days with his mother at her home on North Second street.

Mrs. Esther Lydick and children left Sunday for Pittsburgh where Mrs. Lydick has accepted a position with her brother James Delmer, of the Delmer Electric Co.

Flaming Circle, apparently awaiting the parade.

Sheriff Thomas said, soon after noon, that a reassuring factor in the situation was the failure of crowds from surrounding communities to rush into Niles. His survey indicated few, if any, had been attracted to the city, he said.

Washington, Nov. 3.—Members of the Senate Committee which investigated the financing of the Presidential campaign were still uncertain today as to what report they would make to the country on the eve of the election.

Meeting in executive session in the office of chairman Borah, the committee received final statements of receipts and disbursements from the treasurers of the three major political parties and went over some of the evidence presented here and in Chicago in support of the charges that both the Republicans and Progressives have not accounted for all the money used in the campaign.

ODDS AND ENDS AND THINGS

By J. D. C.

Tomorrow there will be submitted to the voters of Pennsylvania the question whether a convention shall be held for the revision of the Constitution of the state. The wording of the question on the ballot is as follows:

Shall a constitutional convention be held in the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-six, as provided in the act of Assembly approved the 12th day of June, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-three?

If a majority vote "Yes", the convention will meet at the state Capitol on the second Tuesday of January, 1926, and must conclude its session not later than August 1, 1926. There will be 150 delegates, three being elected in each of the 50 senatorial districts of the state. Nominations for delegates will be made at the party primaries in 1925. Each voter at the primary may vote for only two candidates for nomination as delegates for his party, and the two persons polling the highest vote in the primary of each party will have their names placed on the ballot for the November, 1925, election. (Persons who wish to run independently for delegate also are permitted to have their names placed on the final ballot after filing nomination papers with the requisite number of signatures.)

At the 1925 election each voter may vote for two delegates to the convention, and the three candidates in the district receiving the highest vote will be elected delegates. This arrangement, known as "limited voting," is designed to secure representation of the minority party in each district. Members of the convention will receive a salary of $1000, traveling expenses (twenty cents a mile) for one trip to and from the convention, and an allowance of $100 for postage, stationery, etc. As this remuneration is very slight for what may involve seven months of difficult labor in a Harrisburg summer, it is hoped that service in the convention will appeal to those who desire to serve the Commonwealth in a most important cause rather than to those who seek publicity and self-interest.

The convention may submit a proposed Constitution as a whole or may submit separately such parts as it thinks best. Under this plan, the convention may submit a remodeled Constitution containing provisions meeting with general approval and thus secure its adoption, while propositions against which objections may be urged can be separately considered by the voters and ratified or rejected by them without jeopardizing the success of the main body of the Constitution itself.

The Constitution and proposals prepared by the convention must be in the hands of the Secretary of the Commonwealth by the first Monday of September, 1926, who must publish it in newspapers and send copies to voters upon request. The voters of the state will express their approval or disapproval of the Constitution at the election of November, 1926.

The old Constitution has served its purpose very well the past 50 years. It could be improved, but it might be made much worse. It might be well to let well enough alone.

NEW YORK IS BATTLE GROUND

or South Dakota 5—a total of 29—which the C. O. P. managers feel fairly confident of carrying. Granted these, it would give Coolidge 309 in the College.

Importance Of New York. Here again the importance of New York is seen. Subtract New York's block of 45 from this 309 table and it would leave Calvin Coolidge with but 264 votes in the Electoral College two short of a majority.

The actual La Follette strength is the question mark of the whole business. If he carries nothing but his own Wisconsin, then the Republican managers feel they have pretty easy sailing. Give him a sweep in the West, give him the six states that his most optimistic supporters accord him, Iowa, Minnesota, the two Dakotas, Washington and Wisconsin, totalling 55 Electoral votes, and it is well within the range of possibility that the House of Representatives may be called upon to choose the next President.

La Follette's maximum and minimum hopes are confined in narrower lines. His minimum, of course, is Wisconsin, with 13. His maximum embraces, in addition to the fifty-five listed above, the states of Nevada, 3; Nebraska 8; Montana 4; California 12; and Arizona and New Mexico, with 8 each, making a grand total of 83.

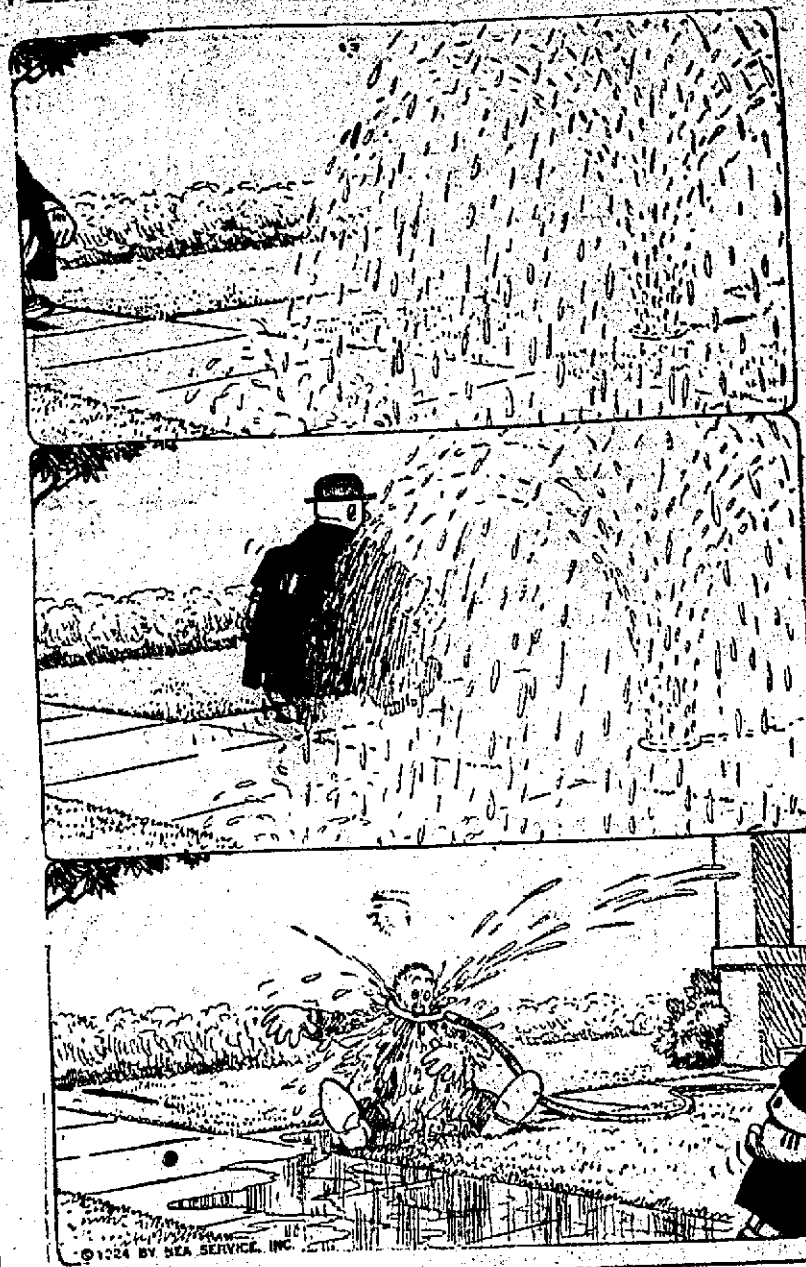

The cockpit is in New York so far as the major parties are concerned. Canny Wall Street, its finger on the hectic pulse of the Empire State, is betting 8 and 9 to 1 on Coolidge's carrying New York State, and by the same token, winning the election.

With his back to the wall, and fighting shoulder to shoulder with Tammany, John W. Davis is battling for these 45 votes that run from the Atlantic on the east to the Great Lakes on the west. That it is not altogether a losing fight is exemplified by the remarkable drift of labor to his standard and away from La Follette's in this closing week. The biggest trades unions in New York have flopped this week. The ultimate effect of this can only be disclosed on November 4th.

ARREST MADE WILL NO DOUBT STOP THE AUTO THIEVING

For some time petty thieves have been rummaging and looting automobiles parked upon the streets of the town at night adjacent to the business district. Front street in the vicinity of the Junior High School building, has been an especially popular section for these thieves to get in their work and many tires, (mostly Fords,) tool bags, blankets, etc., have been taken almost every Saturday night or other special occasion when people assembled in town.

The police have been hard at work trying to locate the thieves, their activities having resulted in cutting down the complaints considerably the past couple of weeks. Saturday evening however, a motorist from a nearby section, who came to town to do some shopping, found that his car had been rifled of blanket, jack and tool bag and straight way reported the robbery to the police.

Chief McMullin and officer Woolridge hustled down to the vicinity of Upper Witmer Park to investigate the robbery and when they reached the Junior High School building a second automobilist gave them a similar tale of woe. The officers then proceeded to make a careful search of the neighborhood and the rays of the Chief's flashlight disclosed a part of the stuff taken from the cars where it had been placed by the thieves in the rear of Ross & Woods store.

Secreting himself to await the return of the fellow the Chief remained there for at least an hour. At the end of that time he was relieved by Officer Woolridge. Shortly after taking his hiding place Officer Woolridge noted a young man nearing the spot. This fellow who proved to be a lad of 17 years, named Merrifield, of Mt Joy, gathered up the plunder and started to leave when the policeman placed him under arrest.

Merrifield implicated another young man named Charles White, also of Mt. Joy. Information was made against the lads before Squire Chappening by Chief McMullin. Merrifield was then placed in jail and will be given a hearing when the officers succeed in rounding up White.

Fourteen Glasses a Day the Limit. One of the first temperance societies was organized in Germany in 1000. The members agreed not to drink more than fourteen glasses of wine a day. But people generally drank more in those days than they did later. In 1830 a temperance society was formed in New Jersey. Its members promised not to drink more than one-half pint of rum or whiskey a day. In 1840 the Washingtonian society was organized in Baltimore, Md. Six of the leading drunkards of the city agreed to swear off forever and aye. In five years the pledge had been signed by 650,000 persons.

Better Than Kerosene. Alcohol is the best thing to use in cleaning the sewing machine. If applied with absorbent cotton held in a small pair of forceps the fingers can be kept clean, and the oil and dust will be found to disappear very quickly. Alcohol does not leave its traces on the material you are sewing on, as kerosene is very apt to do.

WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO ABOUT IT?

What we will have in these United States for the next four years depends on YOU.

You have one day in all of those 1460 days to decide, with your fellow citizens, what we shall have. That day is TOMORROW.

The privilege to cast a vote and thereby name our own governing heads is one that was bought with blood. Having won that privilege it becomes a duty to exercise it. VOTE.

The Progress is less concerned with how you vote than with the fact of your voting. While it is the opinion of this newspaper that Mr. Coolidge is the right man to direct the destinies of this nation for the next four years we have a stronger opinion of the duty of the citizen to vote.

The lines are clearly drawn. No longer is there a similarity between the parties, much less between the principal candidates.

A vote for La Follette is a vote for—no man knows what—except a change. Should he be elected this nation will go for a jump into unexplored realms of political experiments; a journey without a destination. He has done all he can to shake the confidence of men in men. Our nation is cemented by confidence. Do we want it torn apart? Our business is transacted with confidence as a basic factor. Without this confidence our commercial system will crumble and business stagnation with consequent unemployment is sure to follow.

A vote for Davis is a vote for a lower tariff, an experiment which this nation has before tried, and to its sorrow, especially this state whose industries are protected and whose wage earners are benefited by the tariff wall against cheap goods being shipped in. It is also a vote for another whirl at participation in Europe's domestic affairs with possible consequences too terrible to contemplate.

A vote for Coolidge is a vote to continue a man in office who has had the backbone to sit tight for an economy in government policy which has already greatly reduced the cost of government and affected a twenty-five per cent reduction in income taxes, who has resisted every effort made to compel him to play politics and make a grandstand appeal for votes, and who, more than anything else, puts the issue of the maintenance of our American form of government and its institutions above every other consideration.

How different are these policies and these men! Surely among them you will find a choice, and once having found that choice, do not only vote for that choice but vote for his supporters. Whatever your convictions, vote the ticket STRAIGHT.

LA FOLLETTE'S WAR RECORD

(Cedar Rapids Gazette)

WHAT WISCONSIN THOUGHT OF HIM. EXTRACT FROM JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 8, LAWS OF WISCONSIN, SPECIAL SESSION, 1918.

"The people of the State of Wisconsin always have stood and always will stand squarely behind the national government in all things which are essential to bring the present war to a successful end, and we condemn Senator Robert M. La Follette and all others who have failed to see the righteousness of our nation's cause, who have failed to support our government in matters vital to the winning of the war, and we denounce any attitude or utterance of theirs which has tended to incite sedition among our country and to injure Wisconsin's fair name before the free people of the world."

"The speaker of the assembly and the president of the Senate are hereby instructed to transmit a copy of this resolution to the President of the United States and to the presiding officer of the Senate and House of Representatives."

RESOLUTION OF THE ANNUAL STATE MEETING OF CITY SUPERINTENDENTS OF SCHOOLS OF MADISON, WISCONSIN, OCTOBER 4, 1917.

"Whereas, one of the chief duties and privileges of the teachers in the state of Wisconsin is to teach patriotism and to hold before the youth of our nation the ideals of liberty, democracy and the support of the government; and

"Whereas, the words and teachings of Robert M. La Follette are diametrically opposed to those ideals, and

"Whereas, his continuance as a member of the senate of the United States will give his words a prominence entirely out of proportion to their value as an expression of an individual, and

"Whereas, had he been an ordinary citizen he would have been interned ere this for his seditious utterances, therefore,

"Be it resolved, by the city superintendents of the state of Wisconsin, that we heartily disapprove and repudiate any and all of the seditious utterances of said Robert M. La Follette as being absolutely unrepresentative of the people of the state of Wisconsin, and respectfully petition the United States senate to promptly expel him and thus give the people of Wisconsin the right to hold up their heads without shame.

"Resolved further, that a copy of this resolution be sent to the committee on privileges and elections of the United States senate."

WHAT THEODORE ROOSEVELT SAID SEPTEMBER 4, 1917, AT KANSAS CITY:

"Senator La Follette is at this moment loyally and efficiently serving one country—Germany. He is acting in such fashion as to make him one of the most active enemies of this country and a most sinister enemy of democracy. He claims and it is emptiest of all claims, to stand for democracy. He is doing everything in his power to enthrone autocracy under the German flag throughout the world by the attitude he is now taking toward the war. He is showing himself the worst enemy that democracy has now alive."

THIS IS HOW LA FOLLETTE VOTED ON WAR MEASURES:

March 2, 1917—against Bill permitting merchantmen to arm themselves against submarines.
April 4, 1917—against declaring war with Germany.
April 27, 1917—against consideration of Conscription Act.
April 28, 1917—against the Roosevelt volunteers.
April 28, 1917—against Conscription bill.
May 1, 1917—endeavors to substitute referendum on Conscription for the bill as passed in order to delay national war activities.
May 14, 1917—against the passage of the bill providing penalties for espionage.
May 17, 1917—against conference report and final passage

MAKE POLITICS INTERESTING

By FLORENCE DAVIES

Listen to this, mothers! A Michigan University professor turns politician and runs for the Senate. He gets back home from a speaking tour feeling sad. It isn't his political prospects that make him sad; neither is it the state of the country or the crops. It's the young people.

They don't care, he says. The young folks aren't interested in politics. In the old days the first voters and their younger brothers were out with Dad to attend the political meetings. Today, he points out that in all the meetings he addressed there were less than 200 people who were under 32 years of age.

That isn't a very hopeful sign for the future. The churches, the newspapers, the stores, the women's clubs, all know that the youngsters of today are the members, the leaders, the buyers, of tomorrow. The party leaders must know that the young people of today are the leaders of tomorrow. If the boys and girls of today just "don't care" to go with Dad and Mother to the political meeting around the corner, they are going to find themselves facing the duties of citizenship in a self-governing country without having the slightest idea of what it's all about.

Here's where mother might take a hand. Women's suffrage doesn't necessarily mean women office holders, but it does mean women citizens, which in turn means women voters.

When mother thinks it's her business to go to the political meetings, to hear the candidate for herself, to size them up in that particularly intuitive way which a woman has, the young people in the home will soon want to go along.

The trouble with all this talk about women not being good citizens is that everybody always refers to it as a duty. Who wants to do a thing just because she should?

The truth of the matter is that a political meeting is a mighty interesting performance. Once a woman finds out that there's some fun in politics, or rather in following political meetings and sizing up the candidates for herself, you'll see the standing room sign hung out.

Perhaps if we women began by not taking the whole business quite so seriously we might find ourselves getting more interested, and by the way, too many of us start out with the foregone conclusion that there is something crooked, something sinister, something a little suspicious about politics.

"Don't give in to them, don't let them put a thing over on you, fight them every inch of the way," cried a club woman to a member of one of the state committees of one of the national parties, referring to the members of the committee. The club woman wasn't quite sure just what it was that had to be fought, but she knew politicians would bear watching.

But the women who are really taking an active interest in politics have passed the fearful stage. They are learning to accept the limitations and use the power of a great organization.

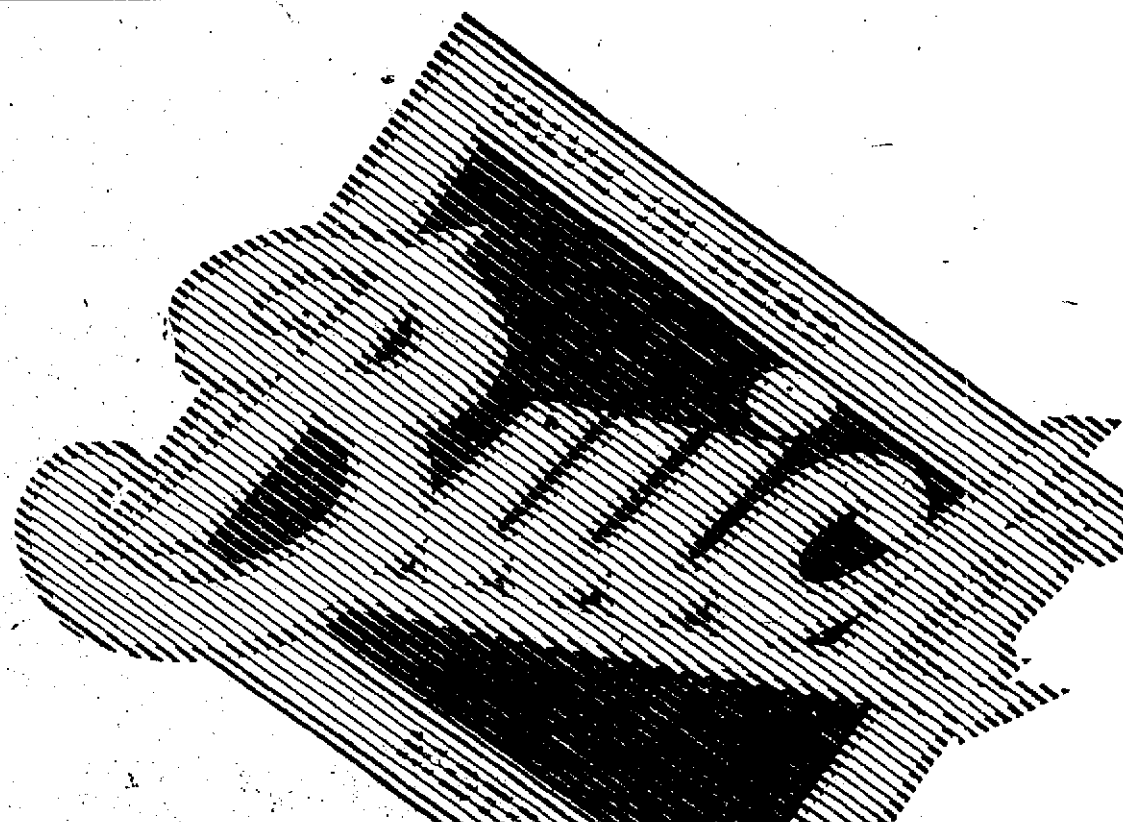

It now remains for them to take their sons and daughters along with them, so that tomorrow's voters will be ready for their responsibilities.

Mrs. Allen, Gifted Speaker, Here Sat.

that political speakers are at a loss to know just what material to use, an abundance of material has been furnished by the opposition party. Perhaps nothing I can say will be new to you on account of the wide publicity which has been given to the campaign issues through the public press, but I wish to direct your attention to a comparison of the records of the two leading parties and contrast the issues.

The speaker referred to the long life and power of the Democratic party, which claimed its heritage from Thomas Jefferson, whereas the Republican party is the result of the teachings and theories of Alexander Hamilton.

In speaking of our foreign policy Mrs. Allen recalled the fact that in 1790 the foreign policy was one of the principal issues of that campaign, and the Republican party made a pledge to the League of Nations was not a difference of principle but merely a difference of method, but after four years of Republican control our foreign policy has not taken us one step nearer to participation in the League of Nations but instead we find ourselves in a list with Mexico, Turkey, and Germany as the nations outside of this League.

When the Republican party came into power and control of the government it came into control of every part of the government. We were promised tax reduction, economy of government, bonus legislation adjustment of foreign affairs and other things, but the first thing the Republican administration did was to begin to raise the tariff.

Mrs. Allen said she was interested in the forming of a group of women's clubs and expressed the hope that such a club would be formed here and that one of the first objects to be considered would be the question of the tariff. The women of today, said the speaker, were not a generation when they could not understand about politics and a special about the tariff question. "But we are," she said, "the way it affects our cost of living and the fact that the women are the purse and the families, when we realize that we are what it does to our pocketbook, we are obliged to understand what it is all about."

Mrs. Allen illustrated this difference between the parties by referring to the story of Lazarus eating the crumbs which fell from the rich man's table. She said that Democrats believe the story would say "poor Lazarus," while Republicans would say "Wasn't it kind of the rich man to let Lazarus have the crumbs?"

The speaker recalled the fact that the issue of honesty in government has never been raised after a Democratic administration. She pointed to the achievement of the Wilson administration during the time when he was in office.

had a Democratic congress and to the constructive legislation, legislation in favor of the interests of all of the people which was enacted under his administration. She said that John W. Davis was active in the passing of this constructive legislation while he was in Congress.

The Republican campaign manager, Mr. Butler, was quoted as saying that the people have forgotten all about the recent scandals and that they will have little effect upon their voting. Mrs. Allen said regarding this: "We do not believe that the public has forgotten. We do not believe that the moral fibre of the people of this country is such that they have come to accept the theory that there are two sets of morals, one private and one public."

In contrasting the difference in the campaigns of the two parties, Mrs. Allen said: "The Democratic convention was a real democratic gathering, despite newspaper reports, and the choosing of the candidates shows a wiping out of all differences. Ever since the close of that convention John W. Davis has made a fine, open, courageous campaign. He has met fairly every issue, he has not handled his opponents with gloves. His campaign has been a source of inspiration to his party."

"The Republicans have found it impossible to discuss the real issues of this campaign. They have tried to scare the people with two issues, the score of Governor Bryan and the score of the attack upon the constitution by the third party. Governor Bryan has been an outstanding figure in the west. He is a business man. Earlier he was a farmer on a large scale. That his fellow citizens liked him is evidenced by the fact that he was twice elected mayor of Lincoln, a Republican city, and twice elected Governor of Nebraska, a Republican state. He has reduced the price of coal and gasoline in his state. He has reduced the number of employees in his state government. He has succeeded by business methods in reducing taxes thirty per cent."

"We as Democrats should be proud that we belong to this great national party, we should be proud of the records of our candidates and of our party. We should also stop worrying about the Republicans who go to the polls, but worry about the Democrats who stay at home. "Election day should be the most sacred of all our national holidays. You and I have never had to suffer for liberty and yet the right to vote is our badge of freedom. We are celebrating the history of the men who suffered and gave their lives rather than be controlled by princes and kings and potentates. It is a sad commentary that we need to be stirred up to do this, to go out and exercise the right of franchise which is our badge of freedom."

On account of the absence from town of President of Council Rosser and several other members there will be no meeting of the Borough Council this evening. The next meeting of the council will be held Monday evening, November 17th.

NO COUNCIL MEETING TONIGHTLOCK HAVEN GIVES LOCAL GRID MEN A TERRIBLE BUMPING

Completely out-generated and out-footballed, Clearfield Hi was forced to drop their third straight game, 73 to 26, with Lock Haven here Saturday. The biggest crowd of the season turned out in anticipation of a great game, with the possibility of a local victory, and for one solid period Clearfield rooters were "ace high," enjoying a 20-12 lead and with Clearfield seeming to have a great chance of, copping the game.

Then while Lock Haven rooters were hunting leaves and blades of grass to hide under, Coaches Wolf and Griffin held a conference and decided to send Bill Rathgeber in to bat for Forsyth. Up to this time Rathgeber had been on the bench, nursing a sore face, but the minute he entered the game Lock Haven's sputtering and backfiring stopped and the Purple and White was able to shoot under the wire a winner thru his careful and dextrous generalship.

For the first period Clearfield's backs enjoyed a sprinting program, running all over the field with ease. The visiting ends were completely bewildered and could not lay hands on "Barnie" and Wilson in their flights. And it began to look as though Coach Wolf's pre-game "skull drill" on "Barnie" and Wilson had gone to naught. Before the game the visiting mentor spread a "watch Barnie, Wilson and Mitchell" warning, but it was not until after 20 points had been put across by this trio that the Lock Havenites appreciated the warning. But after that while we were able to pat at the ends, the visitors' fighting line was the obstacle to further scoring.

The visiting eleven deserves all kinds of praise for their tight and football work. They showed one of the best if not the best team that has been on the local field for some time. The entire team was there with the goods while few stood far out above the rest. Too much credit cannot be given Kune, a second string back, who, when sent in for Slopey, was harder to stop than a presidential campaign. His high stepping advances meant a lot to the visitors. The husky back was good for yardage every time and constantly plowed clear of the scrimmage line to be stopped by a secondary defense man.

Rathgeber also played a good game and engineered his team in fine style. And while these two looked good, the balance of the eleven looked just as good in their departments at all times.

On the Reed team "Barnie" and Wilson stood out well in the backfield. Both played heady games and proved too hard for the visitors to crack, although they received many hard bumps. Both of these lads tallied long runs, Wilson getting 80 and 70 yards on two sprints, with Barnie going 75, 70, 55 and 60.

Rowles and Thurston were there in the line play for Clearfield and both stood out as much as any visiting players. Rowles, aside from getting an extra large share of tackles, got

THE OLD HOME TOWN

By Stanley

Clearfield's first score when he pounced on Mitch's fumble over the goal line. Thurston was as good as a big, not only tackling but laying low their play in his wake. At one time Don grabbed a Lock Haven kick-off and with four would-be tacklers hanging to him he carried the ball back 10 yards. The rest of the team also showed good wares but the lure of the visitors' victory dimmed Clearfield's shining lights.

The game itself was a loose affair, but it bulged with hard fighting and tackling and a frequent run that awoke the spectators in the stands. Kune, the visitors' slashing half-back, led the field with a 90-yard jaunt or marathon, as he kept feeling off games steadily.

Barnie and Wilson were the sprint artists and in the first period the work of these two boys was slowly drawing the "loggers" goat from its concealment. Then a sudden turn of the worm sent the goat back into its hiding place and the Lock Haven rooters came back to the game. The purple jerseyed team fought like tigers and when a couple of their six footers hit one of Coach Reed's mid-air backs it gave the appearance of a long war in the beginning. Clearfield's little men found the grade pretty steep but most stood it out.

radio, at I am informed, 3,000,000 oscillations a second. I will endeavor to tell you what it does.

"The frequency is so great that as the knife cuts it coagulates the blood, automatically sealing the blood vessels. This eliminates bleeding from the wound. The knife sterilizes itself and saves us much time. It also sterilizes the wound. I am also told that it leaves the wound in such a condition that healing is twice as rapid as when the ordinary surgical knife is used.

"You can see what this will mean to surgery of the future. Bloodless and absolutely clean operations. Rapid recovery by the patient. Gentlemen, you are seeing something today well worth noting."

The knife, invented recently by an eminent Chicago surgeon, was brought to Philadelphia for experiment by Doctor Hirst, known as one of the leading surgeons on maternity cases. It is understood that the professor will make his opinion known shortly to the American Medical Association.

The inventor of the knife claims that its greatest benefit will be in operating on cancer cases. It will not only make the clean, rapidly healing incisions, but the high frequency current will kill the cancer germs and heal the disease parts, he claims.

"The great oscillating electric force with its healing and sterilizing qualities will be cancer's greatest foe," he has announced. "The knife will soon be used, I predict, by every great surgeon in treating cancer. It will take the place of all serums.

Cuts Bone Like Butter
"As the knife cuts its way thru the flesh it seals the tissues, much as a singeing in a barber shop seals the tips of the hair. In cancer cases it will make possible the complete removal of the diseased parts. I think that the knife, properly handled, can effect outright cancer cures."

It is claimed that the radio knife, in reality not a knife at all, but a pin point of flashing electric current, can take the place of the ordinary operating knife in all cases except where layers of fat must be cut thru. Flesh and bone will part before it like soft butter under a knife, it is said.

It will not cut thru fat, it is explained, as that form of tissue is a non-conductor. The principal on which the knife is based is the ready response of the body to electric current.

The high-frequency current from the radio set passes completely thru the body. A wire carries the current to the end of the "knife." The current passes out of the body to a copper plate directly under the part being operated upon, and another wire carries the current back to the radio set.

Doctor Hirst performed two operations in his clinic Saturday morning with the ordinary operating knife. Then, when the third patient was brought in, he said:

"Gentlemen, I am trying something new this morning. I am experimenting with something I know little of. It appears to me to be one of the greatest inventions of modern times. It is a surgical knife operated by that thing we have heard so much about and know so little of—radio.

"All I can say to you is watch closely and see what I see."

Mange Mites of Hogs Cause Loss

Pest Is Most Troublesome During Cold Months When Hogs Are Marketed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Heavy losses of pork products due to mange mites of hogs have been reported lately to the United States Department of Agriculture by its inspectors in the Central West. In addition to being an irritation to hogs, resulting in general unthriftiness, mange mites cause meat losses running into hundreds of thousands of dollars annually, according to recent information obtained. Reports by J. O. Wilson, chief veterinary inspector of the bureau of animal industry stationed in South Dakota, are now being studied by department specialists from an economic as well as from a veterinary standpoint. Through the courtesy of H. F. Vecken, superintendent of a large packing house in Sioux Falls, S. D., Doctor Wilson obtained sufficient evidence of avoidable losses to suggest concerted action in reducing the ravages of the mange parasite.

Damage Vital Parts.
Fully 40 per cent of the hogs slaughtered in South Dakota during the winter months of 1923-24 showed evidence of the mange mites, though only about one-half of that number were sufficiently affected as to cause definite losses. The mange parasites damage the hams, bacon and pickles principally—the parts of the hog that are of greatest value. The pest is most troublesome during the colder months, when most hogs are marketed.

The damage to hog carcasses caused by the mites assumes the form of roughened skins and inflammation. In some cases the meat is entirely unfit for food. In other instances the injury places the pork products from such hogs in the lower grades, which have a reduced market value of from 3 to 5 cents. The observations made in South Dakota are believed to be typical of other important swine-growing states.

Loss Preventable.
The United States Department of Agriculture points out that losses due to mange mites are largely preventable. Treatment consists in the application of various simple remedies, ranging from mixtures of kerosene and lard to specially prepared medicated dips. The hogs may be treated by hand application, hog oils, spraying, medicated hog wallows, or by dipping. In applying the treatment swine owners should always treat the entire herd, whether all animals show infection or not.

Medicated hog wallows are one of the most practical means of reducing mange-mite infection, since the instinct habit of hogs is to wallow in water. By medicating the water in properly constructed wallows the remedies take effect with a minimum expenditure of money, time and labor.

Farmers' Bulletin 1035, "Hog Mites and Hog Mange," discusses practical methods of control and eradication.

Handling Clay Soils Is Most Difficult Problem

Of all the various types of soil to be found, none when properly handled are more productive than the heavy clay. The very fineness of these soils gives them a large water-holding capacity, which will adapt them to the production of small grains and grasses.

The management of these soils presents special problems for consideration. Their fineness gives them a tendency to bake and to require more than the usual amount of labor in cultivation. The lack of sufficient surface or underdrainage makes them cold and wet in the spring, and when there is a lack of vegetable or organic matter, they are hard to work and less productive.

One of the great drawbacks with this type of soil is the fineness of the soil particles. To offset this condition the farm practice should be so arranged that the operations will systematically open up and make these soils more porous. Special attention must be given to the time and type of plowing and cultivation. Heavy clay soils should be fall plowed when the moisture content is right. If worked when wet, they are apt to puddle and bake. While it is necessary to plow these soils deeply, the depth should be lowered gradually. The early working of these soils, in the spring, is most important.

Hessian Fly Infestation

Volunteer wheat is one of the greatest sources of Hessian fly infestation to fall-sown wheat. Conditions that are favorable to the germination of volunteer wheat are conducive also to the early emergence of the fly. Since this is the only food present, the flies infest it and later, broods attack the regular crop. The destruction of all volunteer wheat before planting is, therefore, an important step in Hessian fly control.

Cutting Soy Bean Hay

Soy beans may be cut for hay at any time between the full bloom stage and the stage when the leaves begin to turn yellow, about five weeks later.

Yield, ease of curing, and quality of hay will mainly determine the time to cut. The largest yield obtainable at one cutting is secured by cutting when about one-fourth of the leaves are yellow.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cowdick and son Charles Jr., are visiting relatives in Mount Union.

RED CROSS DUTY TO AID VETERANS

Spends Nearly Four Millions in Year to Lessen Burdens of Disabled Soldiers.

SERVES 63,700 IN HOSPITALS

Every Case Is Given Individual Service—Assists Families of These Men Everywhere.

Washington.—The need of individual assistance by ex-service men and their families from the Red Cross is as pressing today as it was immediately after the end of the World War. For six years this work has been foremost of all Red Cross services, and in emphasizing the steady public support of this work the Red Cross National Headquarters urges the largest enrollment this year during the membership campaign opening on Armistice Day, November 11.

Nearly four million dollars of Red Cross funds spent for disabled veterans and their dependents during the year ended June 30 last presents some idea of the magnitude of this work. The current year, it is estimated, will call for still further disbursements of funds for the reason that the Red Cross, through more than 3,500 chapters in as many communities in the United States, has been called upon to help the ex-service men in making out their applications for the adjusted compensation granted in the so-called bonus law.

58,767 Soldier Cases a Month

The Red Cross work for the disabled soldier is designated "home service," for it gives individual attention to the man and his family approximating the interest and loving care of the home. Such service in the hospitals, camps, soldiers' homes and sanatoria, averaged 33,951 cases a month during the year. Assistance to ex-service men and their dependents averaged 58,767 cases a month. In addition, the Red Cross in the last twelve months provided 33,000 recreation and entertainment events in the hospitals and camps.

Thus the Red Cross, symbolized as the "Greatest Mother," still watches over these many thousands of men, comforts them, helps to lighten the burden of their physical reconstruction, and in their homes lifts some of the burdens from their "own people."

Work in Communities Increases

The home service of the Red Cross was the most pressing duty of 2,809 chapters, an increase of 182 communities whose problems affected by the war veteran's condition required solution through immediate and intelligent assistance. The chapters alone expended some $2,000,000 in this work.

The transient disabled soldier, usually suffering from disability or tuberculosis, is almost everywhere a grave problem. From national funds the past year $173,076.36 was expended in helping the chapters to care for these wandering men.

According to government report there are 4,800 veterans in civilian institutions, and in the national homes for soldiers the complications are increasing. The large groups of patients whose claims have been denied, of veterans of foreign wars, and the great number of men permanently resident in these institutions call for Red Cross work which cannot be avoided nor denied.

Definite Service to 73,700

Of a total of $4,500 ex-service men in hospitals and other institutions 73,700 were rendered a definite and specialized service by the Red Cross. In a single month 4,185 new cases were presented and a total of 29,125 was acted upon—figures which serve to illustrate the magnitude of the information and claim service ensuring the attention of Red Cross workers. New veteran legislation amending the War Risk Act which extends many additional rights to disabled ex-service men will open thousands of cases and require still greater Red Cross service.

When Congress granted a charter to the American Red Cross it charged the organization with the duty to act as "the medium of communication between the American people and their Army and Navy." This responsibility to the enlisted men and their families is met every year without restriction.

Serves Men on Active Service

The extent of this Red Cross activity during the last year embraced a total of 195,246 cases. There were 36,995 separate soldiers' and sailors' claims; 20,316 investigations of home conditions; 14,121 cases related to discharges, furloughs, etc. Assistance was given in 35,638 instances for personal, business or family problems; 744,220 visits were made to the sick or disabled, and nearly 40,000 letters and telegrams dispatched to the homes of enlisted men.

From June to September at the numerous military training camps the Red Cross provided information and home service to the trainees, also instruction in First Aid and Life-Saving. The entertainment and recreation events at the various Army and Navy hospitals reached nearly 9,500 during the year, and occupational therapy in nine Naval hospitals gave constructive and beneficial results and occupied the time of patients in the making of useful and ornamental things.

Mrs. L. A. Bant is improving slowly at the hospital from an attack of typhoid fever.

Curwensville's
Own Column

Mrs. S. C. Russell after spending a week in New York City and seeing her sister, Mrs. De Grosse and her husband off on their return trip to Paris, is home.

Samuel P. Arnold, located in Pittsburgh and engaged in the lumber trade, was a Curwensville visitor on Saturday.

Joe Lines, who has been working in a camp in Westmoreland county, during the summer months has returned to Grampian and will open a public restaurant for the winter.

Mr. Gallagher, a former employee at Penn. H. & L. tannery, but removed to Erie several years ago, is visiting with his son Edward Gallagher, Thompson street.

Following a time which every owner dreads, passed off in Curwensville Friday night without any special devilry being perpetrated by the youngsters. The rainfall during the evening put a damper on plans which had been planned. The making up of windows with soap and water was about all that was done. The Mummer parade which had been planned failed to materialize, those who were to participate being a trifle afraid of water, only a few of the artist proclivities.

Messrs. Mose and Lester Whittaker, Harry Riddle and Harry Smith, four young men who left Curwensville early in the spring to make a auto trip from coast to coast, returned home last Thursday. They had some queer experiences during their long voyage but heartily enjoyed every hour of it.

The H. S. foot ball team played Cooper team last Saturday on the home grounds. Score 24-6 in favor of H. S.

Messrs. Norris, Thompson and MacIntyre had themselves over Calaway last Friday to hunt for deer. They returned without sighting a single deer, but the experience was well worth the trial. There was plenty of "bar" meat in that section, but the animal did not seem to present themselves for slaughter, by Clearfield county hunters.

The "no hunting" proclamation by the Governor until after a rainfall on Friday, caused many long drawn faces by those who had secured hunting license and expected to see advantage of it the first day of the season. The rain came in plenty and of a sufficient quantity to justify a hunt. Every man and boy in the section who had a gun or was in the woods but the count of game brought in during the evening was very limited none killing the animal for one day. Travelers are hardly safe going on the high roads some claiming that it became necessary to keep from roads or paths to keep from wounds or persons killed.

The barn of Sam Bartlebaugh over in the Turkey hill section was burned to the ground Saturday evening, together with a team of horses, cattle and grain contents. Origin of the fire unknown.

A community rally of a six reel motion picture entitled "Lest we Forget" will be given in the M. E. church on Wednesday evening the 5th. The admission is free, although an offering will be lifted.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Gray and family and Mrs. George Gray, have returned from Huntingdon, Indiana, after a month's visit among relatives of Mrs. George Gray. The trip was made by auto.

Willis Bradley, who was operated on at the Clearfield hospital several weeks ago for acute appendicitis, is home and mending rapidly.

Today, November 3rd, 1918, Austria surrendered to Allied armies but we do not hear much about it these days.

SURPRISE PARTY AND REUNION
HELD ON MOTHER'S BIRTHDAY

Nine of her eleven living children and their families to the number of 55 surprised Mrs. Rebecca M. Shaw at her home on William street Saturday afternoon by gathering there to celebrate her 66th birthday. By enlisting their mother away on a visit in the afternoon, the children were able to gather at the home and prepare a sumptuous dinner before time for the evening meal, so that upon her return Mrs. Shaw was greeted by a shower of well wishes and presents from her loved ones.

It was a very delightful occasion and was very much enjoyed by the entire group.

Out-of-town guests were: Mrs. Pursey Wallace and family, of Hyde; Mrs. Cyrus Hoover, of Manor; Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Shaw and Miss Lily McCaleb, of Pittsburgh, and Curtin Taylor and family, of Goshen. Those from Clearfield were: Mr. and Mrs. G. V. Shaw and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Zeigler and family, Mr. and Mrs. Russell A. Shaw and family, Mr. and Mrs. Merle C. Shaw and family, Frank P. Shaw and daughter Irena, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford A. Shaw, Miss Rose Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Steele, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Palmer, and Mrs. Creighton Graham.

ANOTHER GAS WELL IN CLINTON COUNTY

An additional gas well was struck on the land of the Clinton Gas & Oil Company in northern Clinton county. The wells of the company are near Farmersley Fork. The new well was drilled two miles from the eleven or twelve other wells and at 11,000 feet a well that is giving 87,000 cubic feet of gas was struck. Those interested state that the new well shows that the company holdings are in gas heads.

A gas well is being drilled in Elk township near Curwensville in the hope of tapping the streak or vein which reaches across the State Geologicalists imagine a dead line in the region of DuBois.

belief that La Follette's sword has been two-edged—that he has cut deeply and, for all practical purposes, equally into both major parties. He has hurt the Republicans in the west by taking such normally Republican states as Wisconsin and North Dakota out of the Republican column but he has hurt the Democrats in such states as New York. For instance, by appealing to the labor group.

The engrossing spectacle of a three-cornered fight for the presidency has, to a considerable extent, overshadowed the all-important fight for control of congress.

More than one-third of the Senate seats, to be exact, are at stake in tomorrow's balloting, and an enormous House of Representatives.

Many states the conflicts are complicated by local quarrels and factional differences that some surprising paradoxes may be expected.

One example of this may be seen in Colorado. Most of the "experts" and political prophets give the six electoral votes of this state to Coolidge, and yet most of them are inclined to the belief that Colorado will elect two Democratic senators. The senatorial fight, at any rate, is close.

Similarly, in Indiana, a majority of the expert opinion gives the state to Coolidge and the Democratic gubernatorial candidate, Dr. Carlton B. McCulloch.

These are but two examples of the many confusing cross currents involved in tomorrow's balloting. Experienced observers have predicted that there will be more ticket scratching tomorrow than in any national election in recent history.

Barring landslides—and there are comparatively few forecasters who anticipate any such event—it is altogether probable that existing lines in congress will not be materially altered.

In the House, the Republicans may increase their present narrow majority, but in the Senate, they will be fortunate to do so. This is due entirely to bitter local fights, such as, for instance, obtains in Oklahoma, Colorado, Rhode Island, Delaware, Wyoming and a variety of others.

The Ku Klux Klan and a variety of issues that do not intrude prominently into the presidential contest feature many of these senatorial fights, and will have a large share in determining the result.

Today was largely a day of rest and preparation on the part of the principals in tomorrow's referendum. Everywhere today party managers were directing their efforts to getting out a vote that will shatter all existing records.

Washington, Nov. 2.—Confident that tomorrow's election will return him to the White House by a landslide proportionate to that of 1920, President Coolidge devoted himself today to the preparation of the "last word of the campaign"—the radio speech he will deliver tonight at 10 o'clock.

The President will confine himself this evening to an appeal to every citizen to "do his duty to his country and vote." With 24 radio stations covering the entire country hooked up for the event, the Presidential utterances are expected to be heard by the largest number of people ever reached one voice.

New York, Nov. 2.—John W. Davis, Democratic Presidential nominee, rested today on the labors of his three months' drive for the White House, confident of success in tomorrow's election.

While his New York headquarters was the scene of great activity, Davis remained in seclusion at his local Valley, Long Island home.

His only engagement, before the opening of ballot boxes was a scheduled address, over the radio tonight. The remarks will "take the air" at 9:15 P. M. on the radio station W. E. A. F., a New York station at 9:15 tonight, speaking to his unseen audience for thirty minutes. Seven other broadcasting stations located in Washington, Schenectady, Pittsburgh, Hastings, Neb.; St. Louis, Memphis and Chicago, will carry his final address from coast to coast.

CON ALLEN NOT SO WELL

Ex-Sheriff and ex-Postraster Con Allen, of DuBois, who is a patient at the DuBois hospital suffering from an attack of pleuro-pneumonia, is again quite seriously ill. He had been improving for several days but took a turn for the worse yesterday. Dr. Royce, a Pittsburgh chest specialist, called to DuBois for consultation by the local physicians.

Starring
GLENN HUNTER

WITH

Ernest Torrence and May McAvoy

"West of the Water Tower" is one of the biggest sensations the book world has ever known.

Just imagine the picture possibilities of such an intensely dramatic study of small town life, with its powerful story of reckless love—a story crowded with enough sensational scenes for ten ordinary pictures.

Think of Glenn Hunter, Broadway's favorite young star, as Guy, the town's smartest boy, and May McAvoy as Bec, the town's prettiest girl—who believe their great love is only a matter between them and God—who lock their secret securely in their own hearts—till Fate whispers the stark truth to the boy's father—a bigoted, rugged minister—who precipitates a tremendous scene that alone could make any picture a smashing success. But this is just ONE of the many big moments which make this, without doubt, the outstanding picture drama of recent years.

"Young Blood" in World's Biggest Store

That young men are being selected to head big corporations was again evidenced in the successor chosen for president of Sears-Roebuck & Company, to succeed Julius Rosenwald. It is Charles M. Kittle, former vice president of the Illinois Central Railroad, who is only 41 years old, and who started life as a water boy for a section gang when 14 years old and rapidly rose to the senior vice presidency. Mr. Rosenwald becomes chairman of the board of directors, after serving 14 years as president. Another young man to enter the organization of the world's largest mail order concern is General R. E. Wood, former vice president of Montgomery Ward & Company, where he was in charge of merchandising.

New York's Fire Sells.

Once, and up to a day within the memory of living men, New York had its fire bells. Eleven of them were hung in wooden towers about Manhattan. A writer of 1837 declared that these bells rang at least 500 times in the 255 days of the year. One of the old armors still hangs at the top-top of Mount Morris park, in Harlem.

The gila monster is a clumsy, lizard-like, though a full-grown specimen is a wonderfully striking object to behold. It is popularly called gila monster because it was once quite common along the Gila river in Arizona.
